A Case that is Puzzling the Customs Officials.

THE LATEST INDIAN OUTBREAK

Personal and General Notes from San Francisco—The Great Wheat Deal. Boycotters Sued for Damages—Etc

FRAUD AT PORT TOWNSEND

The Custom House Records Tampered with and Blank Certificates Stolen

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—In the custom house records at Port Townsend of certificates issued to departing Chinese there is a blank between certificate numbered 247 and certificate numbered 348. The custom house authorities in San Francisco believe that all the certificates between these two numbers, a thousand and one in all, have been fraudulently issued. They believe that the certificates were signed in blank and then sold by some corrupt official to be filled out to suit the purchaser. This theory of custom house officials is being investigated by the district court in this city, for the last steamer brought five Chinese who bore certificates the numbers of which were between 247 and 348. One of these men, bearing the peculiar name of Yee Daju, is under examination. His certificate bears all the marks of genuineness, and the description on it corresponds closely with the description of its bearer. Moreover he has been able to pass a good examination on Port Townsend. It was decided this morning that a commission should be appointed to take testimony in Port Townsend before any further steps were taken in the examination in this city. One peculiarity of the five suspected certificates is that the owners all testified that they went to China by the Oceanic on or about January 4, 1885. In 1885 the Oceanic sailed on January 22, but in 1886 on January 4. The theory of the prosecution is that the whole story told by the men was made up, and that they accidentally made a mistake of a year.

AFTER THE APACHES

GLOBE, June 6.—Troops from San Carlos are on the trail of the offending Indians, but it is doubtful whether they will capture them. The number of Indians out does not exceed thirty. Sieber is said to have mortally wounded an Indian before he was shot, who has since been reported dead. It is doubtful whether Sieber will die.

THE INDIAN OUTBREAK

Gen Miles' Explanation of the Trouble—Latest From the Front.

LOS ANGELES, June 6.—Gen. Miles, in speaking of the latest Indian outbreak in Arizona, said it is the result of a drunken row, which led to a feud between two bands of Indians at San Carlos agency. The row took place several months ago, in which the chief of one of the bands, Tarney Decharo, was killed, and the Indian who killed him was immediately shot and killed. A few days ago a party belonging to the first band of Indians killed one of the other band named Rip, who, they claimed, was the cause of the chief being killed. For this the agent ordered them under arrest, when they commenced firing, and were fired at in return. They left the agency, going south, and have since moved in that direction evidently to escape arrest. The Indians have been well treated, and the affair is the result of the innate deviltry of the Indian character, excited by very bad liquor. Troops are in pursuit, and will continue until they are captured or destroyed. Thus far but one white man is reported as being killed. Up to Friday the trouble had been entirely among the Indians. These Indians are in no way connected with the Apaches who were out last year, and who have all been removed.

HAVE LEFT THE RESERVATION.

NOGALES, June 6.—A dispatch received here to-day states that seventeen Apache Indians have left the reservation and taken to the war path. Why they left is unknown, but they seem to mean business. Last night they were near Calabasos, nine miles north of this place. They have committed no depredations, and the supposition is that they are making for the Sierra Madre mountains in Sonora. The commanding officer of the troops stationed here has been notified, and all due precautions have been taken.

It is stated that the Indians killed one man near Calabasos. The commander of the troops here has been ordered to take prompt steps to suppress them.

CALIFORNIA.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL NOTES

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—George Breck, of Portland, who has been attending the California College of Pharmacy, has returned from a visit to his cousin, the Rev. Mr. Breck, of Suisun.

Mrs. S. Montague, of Oakland, has engaged passage on the steamer Columbia, which sails June 10 for Portland, where she will spend several weeks visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kienath and Mrs. M. A. Aram, formerly of San Jose, but now residing in Portland, started on an extended eastern trip on Saturday, the 28th ult.

Advices from Washington city state that Latan H. Wheeler, of Portland, was graduated from the law department of Georgetown University on June 2. The degree he received was master of laws.

Captain R. R. Thompson, who amassed a fortune in Oregon before coming here, is proprietor of the water works at Alameda, a town a few miles from San Francisco. At a conference between him and the city trustees last week the matter of increased water facilities was discussed, but no definite conclusion was reached. As on former occasions, Captain Thompson assured the trustees that he would sink more artesian wells, with a view of remedying the difficulty, but the residents of Alameda have little confidence that sufficient supply of water will be obtained from this source.

THE THEATERS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The only novelty at places of amusement this week will be the appearance of Miss Janisch in "Camille" at the Bush street theater, supported by her company.

Next week the Irish star [illegible] in a new play called "Paddy Nolan."

The Baldwin will continue Gillette's play "Held by the Enemy," which has done a large week's business already. "Esmeralda" will be produced later by the same excellent company. Then Mrs. Langtry comes for two weeks only. She will open June 20th in "The Lady of Lyons."

"Harbor Lights" is up for its fourth and last week at the Alcazar, where it has been turning people away nightly. Thereafter it goes on the road.

At the Tivoli "The Widow O'Brien, in which Laura Biggar and James O. Barrows share the honors, continues successful.

To-morrow night a special performance of "Young Mrs. Winthrop" will be given at the California theater for the benefit of the Home [illegible] Several professionals of ability take parts and a notable event will be the first appearance on any stage of Nellie Buckley, daughter of the popular leading man L. J. Buckley, who is said to be possessed of much talent.

SUIT TO RECOVER MINING SHARES AND MONEY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—[illegible] has sued Greenebaum & Strauss, stock brokers, and Henry Wehrohn, to recover certain shares in the Consolidated [illegible] Virginia and Ophir Mining companies, and eighteen thousand dollars in coin, which was in the hands of Greenebaum [illegible] and which was valued [illegible]. The amount plaintiff alleges defendants converted to their own use. It is further alleged that Wehrohn had certain [illegible] wrongfully to the exclusion of [illegible] that the appointment of Wehrohn as guardian [illegible] be annulled

SOCIETY [illegible]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—So many society people have left the city for their summer [illegible] that the fashionable portions of the city present a somewhat deserted appearance. As is generally known, the winter months in San Francisco are the most pleasant. The cold afternoon winds and fogs that drift and hang over the city from May or June until September or October make the climate here not especially agreeable. People appear to be scattering more this year than usual. The Yosemite, the Yellowstone, the high Sierras' secluded glens, where quietude is the principal attraction,—these and other places are attracting people of means and leisure, as well as the protected seaside resorts.

The past week was one of weddings, most of them being prominent. This period, however, was particularly eventful for the number of church and Sunday school entertainments. Concerts were notably scarce. A number of excursions and fraternal socials were given and held.

Yesterday's outdoor events were varied and interesting to sportsmen. The baseball games, as usual, drew crowds of people, while several yachting parties were organized.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The supreme court to-day rendered a decision in the case of A. Miller, plaintiff, vs. John J. Dunn, state controller, respondent. This action was brought [illegible] to promote [illegible] Temple, [illegible]

[illegible]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—A knowledge of the value of the [illegible] excursion party system which has lately crept into every railroad office, seems to have penetrated to Chinamen. A sleek Chinaman who possesses a knowledge of the English language, drops into a ticket office and asks what rate he can secure for several friends. He is given to understand that there is a uniform rate and commission. In the commission there is a chance for the Chinese agent, for such he is, and regularly engaged in the business, to name the route over which the party shall go. The road that pays the best commission gets the business, for the Chinese negotiator can make a reduction to his friends out of his commission, although he is instructed that none of the commission shall go to the passenger.

THE SEWER SYSTEM

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—At a meeting of the board of supervisors this evening a warm discussion was had over a resolution providing for the appointment of engineers to draw up a plan for perfecting the sewer system of this city. One of the supervisors antagonized the resolution, charging that it could only be understood by reading between the lines. He objected to paying $25,000 to the successful competitor, $1500 for the second best, and $1000 for the third. He said that he was informed that $25,000 will not furnish the information called for by the resolution. The fact is, he charged, that sprats to catch mackerel are the places provided for the successful engineers. He did not like the resolution, and moved that it should be indefinitely postponed. Finally the matter was laid over for one week.

THE GREAT WHEAT DEAL

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The demand made Saturday on the short interest for round deliveries of wheat did not bring about the expected heavy purchasing in the call board this morning to meet outstanding engagements. There is apparently no disposition on the part of the winning side to force values to a higher level, as short operators are inclined to accept the situation and cancel their obligations at current figures—$2 10 per cental. It is understood that settlement on this basis is so universal that everything is expected to be adjusted in a day or two, when the transfer books will show a clean record. The lesson has been a costly one to some losers. The deal is practically over, though it will take a few days to determine whether values will soften or not.

AN OUT AND-OUT SPIRITUALIST

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The most discussed point to-day of Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace's address last evening on the subject "If a man die shall he live again?" is that in the address he seemed to declare himself out and out in favor of spiritualism. He asserted that the dignity of spiritualism is the sole means of convincing keen and skeptical men of the existence of a future life. Dr. Wallace makes the remarkable assertion that he has never known "one single case in which anyone who, after careful inquiry has become convinced of the truth and reality of spiritualistic phenomena, has afterwards discarded them as based on imposture or delusion."

BOYCOTTERS SUED FOR DAMAGES

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Suit has been commenced by George B. Mowry against members of a boycotting association of this city for $25,000. Plaintiff avers that defendants, by having published and distributed pamphlets stating that he sold Chinese pork, and asking the public to boycott him, have seriously injured his business. He further avers that the charges contained in the pamphlets were false and libelous.

THE CANADIAN STEAMER LINE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The British steamer Restitution, 2171 tons, and 1800 horse-power, has been bought by the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, of Victoria, B. C. In conjunction with a vessel now building at the Union Iron Works for this company, and the Sardonyx, she will be employed in carrying railroad freight between San Francisco, Portland and Port Moody.

THE SEAL CATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Reports of the Eastern Arctic fur seal catch are to hand. The season has been very poor. Five steamers, the Terra Nova, Polynia, Arctic, Eskimo and Aurora, belonging to Dundee, caught 31,500. The value of the skins all told is only $175,000. The captains of the fleet are unanimous in advocating a close season, as the indiscriminate slaughter of seals will soon lead to their extermination.

THE VITRIOL THROWER.

LOS ANGELES, June 6.—Mrs. Roselle, the vitriol thrower, has been held to answer in the superior court. Bail was fixed at $2000. In default of bail she was sent to jail.

After the examination of witnesses in the Roselle vitriol case, Roselle was also held in $500 to appear before the superior court.

AN UNKNOWN SUICIDE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—This morning an unknown Frenchman was found dead in the [illegible], with his note to his side: "Mr. Coroner—I am a stranger in your city without work. I am without money and have to pay my expenses. I am also in bad health and tired [illegible] Have the goodness to put me under the ground."

[illegible]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Sheriff Harris, of Napa, has issued a number of new circulars containing a photograph and description of Peter [illegible], murderer of Mrs. [illegible] Lyons, in Wooden valley, Napa county, on February 1. A reward of $500 is offered for his capture. He is yet supposed to be somewhere in the Northwest.

THE DEATH RECORD

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Of [illegible] burial permits issued by the health department last week, [illegible] were for males and [illegible] for females. Forty-four of the decedents were natives of the Pacific coast, [illegible] of other states, [illegible] of foreign countries, and in [illegible] cases nativity was not ascertained.

SHIPPING

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Arrived: Steamer [illegible], Portland. Sailed: Ship [illegible] Port Townsend; schooner Rosalind [illegible] Columbia river; steamer Oregon, Astoria

STATE DISPATCHES

THE GRANGE PICNIC

ALBANY, June 6.—The time for holding the annual grange picnic under the auspices of the Linn county business council has been fixed for the [illegible] of June at the usual place, on the south bank of the Santiam river at Jefferson. Hon. Wm. Cyrus, of Scio, has been appointed president, and Hon. Charles Miller of Jefferson marshal for the occasion. Prominent speakers from different portions of the state will be present. A large attendance is promised.

A gentleman just returned from a trip through Linn and adjoining counties states that fruit of all kinds will be not more than one-fourth the usual crop. For the first time since fruit became one of the staple products of the Willamette valley it seems likely there will be almost an entire failure of the crop. Late frosts have accomplished this work.

ASTORIA NOTES

ASTORIA, June 6.—The steamer McArthur left for Shoalwater bay this morning.

PRIZE FIGHT AT ASTORIA

Tom Ward Knocks Out Larry Sullivan in Thirteen Rounds

ASTORIA, June 6.—Hard words passed between Larry Sullivan and Tom Ward, both of Astoria, yesterday, and being unable to reach a mutual understanding an agreement to settle the difficulty by a resort to the prize ring at [illegible] o'clock to-day. Promptly at that time the steamer Eureka, which had been chartered for the occasion, left Wilson & Fisher's dock having on board a select and limited delegation of sporting men. After leaving the dock the principals, with their seconds and others, were picked up in the stream, and the steamer at once headed for Chinook beach, the place chosen for the "bloody fray," being a beautiful spot near McGowan's cannery, in a small open field surrounded by trees.

The fight was to be according to Queensberry rules, and the preliminaries were easily settled, Tom Graves being chosen referee and Charles Johnson time keeper. Ed. Smith and Bill Scott were Sullivan's seconds, while Peter Grant and Dick McCarron took care of Ward.

Everything being ready time was called at 4:30 P. M.

THE FIGHT

Round 1—Sullivan opened the ball with a left-hander on Ward's jaw, both men going to work without any noticeable damage on either side when time was called.

Round 2—Sullivan again led off with a heavy left-hander on Ward's breast, following it up with a right hander on Ward's mouth, which puffed up his under lip and brought first blood for Sullivan. Some science was displayed in this round, both men acting as though they were afraid of each other.

Round 3—This was the best round fought during the entire fight. Both men went at it in earnest, Sullivan using his left on Ward's jaw, and then got away, directly afterwards following it up with a heavy blow on the right side of Ward's head, which brought flesh, skin and blood together. It was now give and take in earnest, Sullivan getting in and pushing the fight, and things looked rather shaky for Ward when time was called.

Round 4—This was rather a lively round, Sullivan being coached and urged by his seconds to go in and win, but he failed to take advantage of several fine openings. Ward now commenced to get mad, and it was very apparent that unless Sullivan struck him a chance knock-out blow Sullivan was gone, as Ward is well known as a stayer.

Rounds 5 to 12—From round five on Ward forced the fighting, Sullivan being continually on the retreat, and either followed up by Ward or urged to "stand and take his medicine," as Ward put it. Ward stated that he had come there to fight and win, and proposed to do so. Abuse of Ward by Scott, one of Sullivan's seconds, simply served to make him more determined than ever to make his stated intention good. Up to round twelve the fighting was rather tame, very few effective blows being struck.

SULLIVAN KNOCKED OUT.

Round 13—After an interchange of blows Sullivan struck at Ward, who retaliated by hitting Sullivan in the pit of the stomach, a blow which knocked him completely out, taking away his breath. Sullivan staggered forwards and then fell backward, lying on his back and gasping for breath. It was full ten minutes before he recovered himself. The fight was at once awarded to Ward, a purse being raised for him among the crowd. Ward's face looks as though a bulldog had been chewing at it, while Sullivan is comparatively uninjured.

Quite a delegation of "ladies" witnessed the mill.

Another fight will ere long be probably arranged, although Sullivan says that he has now had enough of Ward.

FROM SALEM.

Dr Harry Lane Appointed Superintendent of the Asylum

SALEM, June 6.—Dr. Harry Lane, of Portland, was this afternoon appointed superintendent of the insane asylum by the asylum board. Two ballots were taken, the first of which stood Lane 1, Dr. Hill of Albany 1, and Dr. Richardson of The Dalles 1. On the second ballot Webb, who had voted for Hill, in deference to the wishes of Gov. Pennoyer, voted for Lane, who was thus elected, McBride still casting his ballot for Richardson. There were five or six candidates for the position, whose friends have been urging their claims for several months past. An especially strong fight was made between Drs. Hill and Maston, of Albany, and it was generally thought that the nominee would be one of these two. Gov. Pennoyer, deeming that the appointment of either would cause a rupture in the Linn county democracy, determined to secure the election of Lane notwithstanding the fact that that gentleman recently wrote to him withdrawing his name from consideration of the board in connection with the superintendency. Hill was really Webb's choice, but he evidently thought it would be policy to elect Lane. Dr. Richardson, who was voted for by Mr. McBride, was not a candidate for the position. Dr. Lane will enter upon his four years' duties at the superintendency on July 1, the date on which Dr. Rowe's resignation takes effect. He is a grandson of Gen. Joseph Lane, married [illegible] years [illegible] two [illegible]. Dr. Lane will return to his Portland with his family.

THE EAST.

Cardinal Gibbons, the Church and the K. of L.

A VICTORY FOR LAW AND ORDER.

A Difference of Religious Belief Causes a Shocking Tragedy—The International Typographical Union—Etc.

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Attitude of the Church towards the Knights of Labor.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The Commercial Advertiser says: cardinal Gibbons refuses to say anything at present of his intended action on the labor question. Decisive steps will soon be taken, however, which will leave no doubt of the church's attitude.

From a companion of the Cardinal, a Commercial Advertiser reporter received some intimations regarding probable character of the forthcoming pronunciamento. The right of laboring men to combine for their common benefit will be conceded, and all such lawful combinations will receive the blessings of the church, but Catholics will be forbidden to take part in boycotts or other infringements of the rights of citizens, and they will be forbidden to join any organization which practices intimidation, whether violent or of other character. No Catholic will be permitted to become a member of any order which binds its members to secrecy or blind obedience, or the dictates of its leaders. It will be proposed that closer relations be brought about between Catholic members of organizations and the Catholic clergy. The object of this is to prevent Catholic laboring men from drifting off from the church on account of their association with Protestants, and to keep them from adopting theories which are antagonistic to church dogmas.

From the source mentioned above it was also learned that Cardinal Gibbons's position in the McGlynn case is simply this: He likes Dr. McGlynn personally, and does not condemn him for advocating general property in land, for that doctrine has not yet been pronounced heretical by the pope speaking ex-cathedra, but he does blame Dr. McGlynn for rebelling against his ecclesiastical superior, and dabbling in politics to an extent unbecoming his priestly character.

THE CHICAGO ELECTION.

Another Decisive Victory for the Better Element of the Population.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The result of the election in Cook county to-day for six members of the circuit bench was a decided victory for the citizens' ticket. Except in Chicago's Sixth ward the vote averaged three to one against the ticket put up by the machine political committee and endorsed by the socialists and anarchists. The three republican candidates originally named by the political committee were endorsed by the citizens' ticket, as there were no charges of bribery or fraud against them. The democratic nominees, however, Kraft, Strauss and English, were rejected, as it was plainly asserted that the democratic committee had hawked the nominations about the streets at a price of $5000. In their stead the citizens' committee placed the names of State's Attorney Grinnell, Frank Baker and R. W. Clifford. Soon after the nomination was made one of the alleged boodle nominees (Crowes) withdrew from the ticket, and the democratic committee, after much searching, decided to endorse Baker of the citizens' ticket for the vacancy. This narrowed the fight down purely between Grinnell and Clifford on one side, and the citizens' organization, bar association, and several influential clubs, and Kraus and English on the other side, endorsed by the "machine" committee of the united labor party, which recently made a red flag campaign against Roche for mayor.

Exclusive of the suburbs, where Grinnell and Clifford lead heavily, the totals are as follows: Grinnell, 23,098; Clifford, 23,072; English, 10,744; Kraus, 10,680. The republican candidates and the unopposed democrats received each about 32,000 votes. This is only about a third of the registry. On account of the light vote being polled during the day it was feared by many that the combination would succeed in snowing under the citizens' ticket, but later developments show the fears to have been unfounded. The election was very quiet.

A TERRIBLE CRIME.

A Difference in Creed Sweeps a Family out of Existence.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 6.—Frederick Hermann this afternoon killed his nineteen-months-old daughter, beat his wife fatally and then cut his throat, severing the windpipe and jugular vein. Hermann is a Lutheran and his wife a Catholic, but they never differed on matters of faith until recently, when Mrs. Hermann wanted to have the baby baptized into her church instead of the Lutheran. This was done, and the father remained in ignorance of it until yesterday. When he went home this afternoon he told his wife it was now a question of death. He then started to get a knife, when Mrs Hermann jumped out of a window. Hermann followed, and catching her at a neighbor's, beat her into insensibility with a brick. He then returned to his house, took up a razor and cut the baby's throat, almost severing the head from the body. He then cut his own throat from ear to ear, and will probably die to-night.

He has written several notes, in which he accuses his wife of deceiving him, but says he forgives her.

THE TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

Thirty-fifth Annual Convention at Buffalo, New York.

BUFFALO, June 6.—The thirty-fifth annual convention of the International Typographical Union began its sessions here to-day. The forenoon was occupied by the work of the committee on credentials. In the afternoon President Aimeson of Nashville delivered the annual address. He congratulated the convention on the progress made and the cheerful outlook for the future. Of the strike fund he said: "It is a mooted question whether the fund, as it exists now, is not productive of more injury than benefit. There can be no question that in many instances the fund was a potent factor for asking an advance last year, and if the requests had been allowed an immense number of men would have been thrown out of employment. The executive council therefore determined to withhold the fund except in extraordinary occasions."

On the question of stereotype plates, which promises to give rise to the greatest amount of discussion in the convention, the president said that perhaps the union had never been confronted with such an intricate and difficult question, and that whether it was for good or ill could only be determined by time.

Of the nine-hour law, the president said it was a most important question, that would affect book and job printers most, but whether the time was ripe to pass upon it the union must decide. In his opinion the coming year would have important matters enough to deal with without this, and he suggested its postponement to a more convenient season.

Of apprentices the president said: "This time-worn subject is still with us. The resolution prohibiting subordinate unions from recognizing apprentices on morning papers who may thereafter be illegally placed therein has not been heartily acquiesced in, amounting in cases to non-observance. A strange paradox is that employers, who suffer from incompetent workmen, place obstacles in the way of remedying the evil."

Committees on stereotype plates and on borrowing and loaning matter were appointed. The law making an official organ of the body was repealed.

THE CHURCHES.

THE PROPOSED EPISCOPAL CATHEDRAL.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The trustees of the Protestant Episcopal cathedral have made progress enough with their plans to announce the formal opening of subscription books this morning. Richard Auchmuty, the treasurer of the cathedral board, is having general charge of the lists. The banking houses of Drexel, Morgan & Co., Brown Bros. and Morton, Bliss & Co., have offered to receive the contributions. The trustees hope to raise enough money in a month or two to purchase the cathedral site, and to lay by $1,000,000 or more in the shape of a building fund. The question of site is still under consideration. Several plots of ground have been suggested all over the city, some as far south as Grand street, and others as far north as the heights beyond the Harlem river. A committee of five trustees has the matter in charge, and a decision is looked for at a meeting of the board to be held next Wednesday. From 100 to 150 city lots will be bought in a lump, if it is possible to reduce the average price.

SAN FRANCISCO CHURCHES.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—In the line of churches several ministers have left, or are preparing to leave for a few days' rest and recreation. In the absence of the well known Dr. MacKenzie, of the First Presbyterian church, the pulpit yesterday was filled by Dr. Lindsley, late of Portland. The Doctor's theme was "The rock of my strength and my refuge is in God."

Yesterday, according to the Russian church calendar, was the feast of Pentecost, and was celebrated by Russians here with great solemnity in their chapel. Father N. G. Mitropolsky is now pastor here. He will be remembered by all persons who have visited Alaska as the priest in charge of the quaint Greek church at Sitka. He it was who used to hold special services, and have the bells ring the chimes for the benefit or possibly entertainment of tourists on the arrival of the regular monthly steamer. He has figured prominently in hundreds of letters written to Eastern journals on Southeastern Alaska. His management of the Russian church there during his ten years' pastorate seems to have so pleased the ecclesiastical authorities in Russia that he was given a liberal pension, in addition to his salary, and was promoted to his present position of trust and influence immediately on the departure of his predecessor, Rev. Vladimir N. Westmohoff. He will probably remain in charge of the Russian church here and in Alaska and the Aleutian islands for many years to come.

THE REFORMED CHURCH.

CLEVELAND, June 6.—In the general synod of the Reformed church at Akron this morning an overture from the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States, asking for a closer union of all evangelical churches, was sent to the committee on church union. Consideration of the revised constitution consumed the greater part of the day.

Avoids Offending Ex-Rebels.

Concord (N. H.) Monitor.

In the dedication of the statue of Gen. Garfield he [Cleveland] had an excellent opportunity to set himself right, to express his abhorrence of treason, and his admiration of the loyal men who crushed it out. Instead of doing this, he delivered an address which is chiefly conspicuous for its careful avoidance of all reference to the issues involved in the war, its results or its lessons. He did not even refer to Gen. Garfield as one of the defenders of his country or as a loyal man. Evidently fearing lest his presence on such an occasion might be misunderstood by his Southern constituents, he was careful to construe the memorial not in any sense as a monument to the cause of the Union, but as a "sign of animosities forgotten."

OBJECTIONS TO THE EGYPTIAN CONVENTION.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 6.—Count de Montebello and M. Nelidoff, the French and Russian ambassadors, respectively, have lodged the objections of their governments to the ratification by Turkey of the Anglo-Turkish convention relative to Egypt.

M. Nelidoff, in communicating his government's objections, hinted that if the sultan ratified the convention such action might cost him his throne. He also indirectly charged England with bribing the grand vizier with six hundred thousand pounds sterling, and other palace officials with large amounts in order to secure their approval of the convention. The sultan, after his interview with M. Nelidoff, hurriedly summoned Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, special British envoy with reference to Egypt, and questioned him as to the truth of these charges. Sir Henry indignantly denied that he or his government had been guilty of bribery. The Turkish officials who were said to have received bribes warmly protested their innocence.

THE THISTLE WINS ANOTHER RACE.

LONDON, June 6.—A brisk breeze was blowing this morning when the yachts started in the race at Dover round the course, forty-four miles long. The Thistle led directly she turned the pier within her own length, and was a quarter of a mile ahead of the other yachts at the end of two miles. When the Thistle had covered twenty-two miles, or half the length of the course, she led the Genesta by five minutes and forty-two seconds. The Irex was third, one minute behind the Genesta. A thick fog has considerably interfered with the racers, but it is now clearing away.

4 P. M.—The Thistle was first to cross the finishing line, leading the Genesta, which was second by eleven minutes; Irex third.

The Thistle again justified her claim to the title of champion. She left the others steadily, although it was a fair race. The Irex took second place. A fog prevented the crews of the boat from seeing far. The course was triangular. The first part of the race beat over was against the tide. Then there was a dead run from the first to the second mark, and over the third side of the triangle there was another thresh against the tide.

A separate sweepstake race was won by the Neptune in 3:10:28, the Foxhound second in 3:31:09.

CANADA REBUKED BY THE "STANDARD."

LONDON, June 6.—The Standard reads Canada a severe lesson for increasing her duties on iron and steel, which it says is a selfish policy and can only tend to sunder the colonies from the mother country. The increase was made, it says, on the hollow pretense of a desire to check the rapid increase of trade with the United States in our favor. "We decline the offer with thanks. We do not want our trade fostered at the expense of our neighbor even if it could be done, but it can't be done in that way. It is the interest of Canada to foster trade with the United States by every means in its power. Free trade is on the Canadian side largely, and will be in spite of the insane tariff of the United States, and the larger the trade with the United States the richer will the Canadian people become and more business will they do with other countries."

LONDON, June 6.—The Standard says: "We do not believe that Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain will be lured by such a bait as Gladstone's hint that he will not make the exclusion of Irish representatives from Westminster a vital principle of the home rule bill, because there are far greater points than this upon which Gladstone has not yielded, such as the department of justice in Ireland, executive administration, religious liberty and rights of property. VIENNA, June 6.—The flood has reached Mako, Szegedin and Hile. There is great distress in these towns. Thousands of men are working with untiring energy repairing dykes. Piles have been driven twenty-seven feet into the sand and fastened together with strong chains, but after a few hours the rush of water tore them up.

VIENNA, June 6.—The distress in Hungary increases hourly. Numerous lives have been lost. Entire herds of cattle have been drowned at Mako. The flood has reached the Czanad country, and fully 50,000 acres of wheat land will soon be inundated. Czongard is submerged. It is calculated that 50,000 families have been ruined by the floods.

SMALLPOX AT SANTIAGO DE CUBA.

NEW YORK, June 6.—A letter from Santiago de Cuba, May 27, says: At this writing 255 cases of smallpox are known by the civic authorities to exist here, and it is estimated that fully 100 more are being treated by charlatans. The deaths in this city from the 1st to the 21st numbered forty, not one of the victims having been vaccinated. The disease has appeared at Guantanimo, and doubtless will spread to all Cuban ports. The masses are ignorant blacks, superstitious and inclined to prayers rather than to vaccination.

THE WORK OF EVICTION.

DUBLIN, June 6.—The first three families evicted at Bodyke to-day offered only passive resistance. Cox, M. P., had persuaded them to refrain from throwing boiling water upon the police. In spite of that, however, the sheriff ordered Cox off the premises. When the police started to evict the fourth family a large quantity of boiling meal and filthy water was thrown upon them.

THE MILE-A-MINUTE MYTH.

Average Time made by Railway Trains in America and England.

New York Mail and Express.

"It is interesting to study railroad statistics," said a railroad director to a Mail and Express reporter. He continued in the same strain, "There are 250,000 miles of railroad in the world. In 1885 the railways of the United States carried 312,676,641 passengers and 493,453,430 tons of freight. Each person was transported an average distance of 23 miles, hence the entire movement on all the roads was equal to carrying 8,541,309,674 persons one mile. Massachusetts takes the lead in passenger transportation with 53,800,887; Pennsylvania next, then New York, Illinois, New Jersey and Ohio. In freight tonnage Pennsylvania takes the lead with 105,507,916 tons, and New York second. There are about 25 miles of double track, sidings, etc., 19 locomotives, 621 freight cars, 5 baggage and mail and 13 passenger cars for every 100,000 miles of railroad in the United States.

"Speed is hard to average. The sixty and seventy-five-miles-an-hour train is generally a myth. An average of forty-eight and three-tenths miles per hour is the fastest time in the United States. This is made on the Pennsylvania 'limited' in its run from Jersey City to Philadelphia, ninety miles, in less than two hours. The 'Flying Dutchman' train is supposed to make the fastest time in the world, between London and Bristol, 118¾ miles, in less than two hours. The average though, of even this fast train is only fifty-nine and one-eighth miles per hour. There are several other trains noted for remarkably fast time on short distances. Sometimes a straight and even grade for a distance of twenty miles will permit a train to run more than a mile a minute. One train on the Canadian Pacific road, from Cotaneau to Ottawa, averages fifty miles an hour for a distance of seventy-eight miles. On the Central road the late Mr. Vanderbilt traveled at the rate of ninety miles an hour. An average of thirty-six and one-half miles an hour is considered fast traveling. Many of the limited lightning expresses do not go at a faster rate. The value of railroads in the United States exceeds $8,000,000,000.

A Very Gloomy Report from the Panama Canal.

MORE OF THE O'BRIEN INCIDENT.

Investigation of the Attempt to Bribe the Sharpe Jurors—Notes from Spokane Falls and Tacoma—Etc.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

A Very Gloomy Report Made by an Officer of the Galena.

NEW YORK, June 6.—When the United States ship Galena was at anchor off Aspinwall in March, Charles C. Rogers was assigned by the naval department to accompany Charles de Lesseps, vice-president of the Panama canal, on his tour to inspect the works and arrange with the contractors for the future progress of the enterprise. The trip commenced on March 10, and lasted seventeen days. During that time Lieut. Rogers saw every foot of the canal, talked with contractors on the work, with laborers, and both with those people who were enthusiasts on the canal's prospects and with those who are opposed to it and are little sanguine of its ultimate success. In cases where he doubted the information given him he went practically to work on his own account to verify figures and estimates. The Galena is now in this port. In reply to questions Lieut. Rogers said:

"The estimated total excavation necessary to complete the canal is now placed at 105,390,000 cubic meters. Out of this up to date the amount completed is 31,920,000 cubic meters, leaving 73,470,000 cubic meters to be excavated. Up to the end of 1885, 18,417,318 cubic meters had been excavated, and during 1886 11,727,000 cubic meters were added.

"The most uncertain problem is the time it will take to complete the work at Culebra mountain. On this mountain during the rainy season the surface deposit becomes saturated with water, and the increased weight, coupled with the incline, causes the deposit to slide over the smooth surface of clay into the canal excavation works. The clay in turn contracts during the dry season, large fissures result, and hence another source of landslides. The natural washout of the sides by heavy rains, torrential in character, is another cause of deposit worse than all. It is a fact that up to the present time the mountain on the left side of the cut is found to be moving bodily toward the axis of the canal at an annual rate of from twelve to eighteen inches, owing to the cutting away of its lowest support.

"Were all the money necessary for the completion of the canal subscribed to-day, and both men and machines worked to their utmost, it would require seven years to finish the work. The contractors have all engaged to complete their work in 1888, but there is no penalty attached to their failure so to do."

THE COMPANY'S FINANCES.

In respect to financial matters I found it very difficult to obtain information. As far as I could ascertain, the amount available for expenditures hereafter on the canal on March 1 of this year amounted to 258,025,403 francs, or $45,656,461. The total expenditure to that date amounted to $131,081,729. Several prominent officials informed me that of this sum over $45,500,000 was available for work on the canal and interest on the bonds of the company. On the other hand, I ascertained on the most reliable authority that some years since the canal company mortgaged its interest in the Panama railroad to three New York firms, Seligman & Co., Drexel, Morgan & Winslow and Lanier & Co. The canal company originally bought 68,534 out of the 70,000 shares in the railroad, for which they paid 93,876,225 francs, or about $18,000,000. On the mortgage these shares realized about $6,000,000, and my authority asserts that, including interest, the mortgage now amounts to $21,000,000, and that sum falls due this year. He also states that interest is due on the canal company's bonds to the amount of $14,000,000. If this be true, the debt falling due this year amounts to $35,000,000, leaving for works and expenses only $10,000,000. Officials of the company denied that this money was due, but my authority was a most trustworthy person. The gross expenditures of the canal are about $3,000,000 per month, and therefore the sum they now have, even without the mortgage to pay, will not last much more than fifteen months."

THE SHARPE TRIAL.

Investigation of the Attempt to Bribe Some of the Jurors.

NEW YORK, June 6.—To-day was a busy day in the court where Jacob Sharpe is being tried for bribery. One hundred and sixty-one persons had been summoned as jurors in the case but had not responded when their names were called. They have been ordered to appear and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt. The court also set apart this morning for investigating a charge made by the district attorney that attempts to corruptly influence the jurors had been made. Juror Hudson said an acquaintance named Hoagland had approached him on the subject of the trial.

The court ordered a warrant for Hoagland's apprehension. George Ruffie testified that before he had received his notice, two young men called upon him and said: "You are on the Sharpe jury and we wish we were on the jury. We could make from $20,000 to $25,000." "They said I could get to be foreman. I thought this all foolishness, and said so. They said they wished they had the chance I had. I swore at them and left them." Geo. H. Sutton, who had been excused from the box on peremptory challenge of the defense, testified that a man named Warner called at his office and asked him if he wanted to get off the jury. He said he did. He asked if he was for the prosecution. "I said," he continued, "that I did not want to talk to him, and he replied: 'Then you will get off.'" The court said he would issue a warrant for Warner's arrest.

Juror Raymond said Geo. W. Lynch, of Christopher and Tenth street road, was the acquaintance in the conversation of Saturday. "Lynch said there was a man in his neighborhood who had gone on the jury and he wanted to know if I would see him and ask him to be lenient with the old man. I met Lynch again and he said I had placed him in an embarrassing position by not acting on his suggestion and asked me what I was going to swear. I said I was going to tell the truth or nothing. He said it was a bad case."

This closed the evidence. The court announced that a warrant would be issued against Lynch. Hoagland and Warren will be indicted for bribery and Lynch for contempt, and they will be tried by jury. Delinquents who failed to respond to the call for jury duty the court said would be arrested. Among those who refused to answer were Tony Pastor, Richard K. Fox and Louis L. Lorillard, Daniel F. Dickenson and Hamilton McK. Twombly. The work of getting the jury then continued.

THE O'BRIEN INCIDENT.

The Irish Editor's Action Generally Approved by Friends of the Cause.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Editor O'Brien was at his room in the Hoffman house all morning. He received many callers. Peter Walsh, of district assembly 75, Knights of Labor, said: "I come to say that of the 700 men who marched Saturday night of our assembly, four-fifths were in sympathy with your action."

John Delaney, president of the municipal council of the Irish National League of New York, said: "Anyone who reads the statements of O'Brien and McGlynn cannot but see that it was the intention of most of the committee of the labor party to deceive O'Brien and entrap him in his speech. By their action they have insulted the Irish race in the person of one of the truest and most patriotic representatives, and the Irishmen of New York will undoubtedly resent it. The idea that any politician or other person influenced O'Brien's course is simply preposterous."

O'Brien was tendered an informal reception by the New York Press Club this afternoon.

O'BRIEN COMMENDED.

NEW YORK, June 6.—A meeting of delegates from each of the assembly districts of the city, representing the union labor party, met to-night. Resolutions were adopted commending the refusal of Editor O'Brien to be led into an alliance with socialists, communists or nihilists, and saying that true American workingmen refused to adopt the doctrines of George and socialistic organizations.

The committee of the National League, which is making arrangements for a dinner to-morrow evening, went to the Fifth Avenue hotel to invite James G. Blaine. Blaine was out, but his son Walker assured the committee of the warm sympathy of his father with the cause of home rule, and expressed regret that his father could not appear at the dinner, owing to pressing work demanded by arrangements for his departure for Europe.

TACOMA NOTES.

TACOMA, June 6.—Bishop Fowler of the M. E. church will arrive here Wednesday and will preach in the opera house. He will decide the location of the new M. E. educational institution, which will either be at Tacoma or Port Townsend.

Special entertainment will be provided for members of the press visiting the city on the days of the celebration. They will be cared for and wined and dined free of expense.

The first train to pass over the switchback from the East arrived to-day with fifty odd miners aboard, destined for the mines of Alaska.

C. B. Wright and party will arrive to-morrow on a special, via the Cascade switchback.

C. B. Cole, successor to Otis Sprague, superintendent of the Pacific division of the Northern Pacific railway, has taken hold of the work with the hand of an experienced railway man, and some changes in subordinate positions are anticipated.

James Hill, discharged from the asylum at Steilacoom, as cured, was to-day returned to that institution a raving maniac.

A pleasant feature of the fourth of July celebration here will be the presence of local bands of music from various cities of the territory, which will swell the grand chorus of the jubilee to magnificent proportions.

H. L. Emery, a former employe of the Tacoma hotel, to-day uttered a fraudulent check upon the Tacoma National bank, forging the signature of Isaac W. Anderson, of the Land Company. The check was cashed by J. B. Rough, who was not aware of its spurious nature until presentation at the bank. A warrant was issued for the forger's arrest, but he has not yet been apprehended. The culprit claims to be a son of Paymaster Emery of the United States navy.

An illicit still was discovered Saturday by Deputy Collector Gwin Hicks, on the premises of local vinegar works, with indications that it had been used for the unlawful distillation of liquor. The works were seized and the matter reported to the commissioner. The same officer to-day seized the brewery of Diedrich Stegman, near this place, for violation of the internal revenue laws in the use of stamps and the making of false entries in government books.

SPOKANE FALLS.

Arrival of Northern Pacific Officials—The Board of Trade.

SPOKANE FALLS, June 6.—Messrs. C. B. Wright and Brookman, and Gen. Corliss, three of the directors of the Northern Pacific railroad, together with Mr. Paul Schulze, general land agent of the Northern Pacific, and W. T. Harris, Bartlett and several ladies, arrived at Spokane Falls this evening, on the delayed west-bound train. Messrs. Wright, Brookman and Corliss are making a tour of inspection of the road. The party remained in the city for one hour, and availed themselves of the opportunity to visit the falls and inspect the extensive alterations and improvements which the Northern Pacific has made in its depot accommodations here. The party left on the west-bound train, intending to cross the Cascades to Tacoma.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The first annual meeting of the Spokane Falls board of trade was held this evening. The organization, which was inaugurated two weeks since, now numbers about forty members. It has adopted the by-laws of the Portland board of trade. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, F. H. Mason; first vice-president, C. M. Paterson; second vice-president, J. D. Sherwood; secretary, H. M. McCartney. A committee of three, consisting of A. A. Newberry, Maj. Routhe and C. M. Paterson, were delegated to advise selections of members for the various committees. A special committee was appointed to urge upon the proper authorities the practicability of railroad connection between this city, the Big Bend, and into the newly-discovered mineral belt on the Okanagan, and also to take immediate steps to improve the wagon roads into the last mentioned district.

The new board of trade propose to pay special attention to the mining industry and to immigration matters, in addition to the usual work of kindred institutions.

ARIZONA.

COPPER REDUCTION WORKS BURNED.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The Call's Nogales special says: News has been received here that the copper reduction works of the Compagnie Bolo, at Santa Rosalia, has been partly consumed by fire. Loss, $500,000.

Four troops of cavalry started from Fort Houachuca this afternoon, on a scouting expedition, under command of Capt. Lawton. The troops will probably endeavor to head off the hostiles in the Patagonia mountains, and prevent their getting into Old Mexico.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

FIRE AT PORT TOWNSEND.

PORT TOWNSEND, June 6.—The store of Capt. Hines, on the hill here, caught fire inside last night and the stock was almost totally destroyed. The inside of the store is completely gutted. The stock is insured for $1200, and the building for $300. The fire is supposed to have started from rats tipping over a tin of matches, which caught fire and ignited a can of coal oil.

A Prize Worth Contending For.

Helena Independent.

Portland, Oregon, is making a very decided effort to obtain the trade of the Coeur d'Alene country. The purchase by S. G. Reed of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan is the mainspring of their action, as Mr. Reed is the mainspring of business energy in Portland. The prize is one worth contending for. The Portland board of trade has had a delegation in the Coeur d'Alene country looking up the commerce as well as the mines. A strong effort will be made to induce the Oregon Navigation Company to extend its line from Farmington into that district and thus bring it into direct connection with Portland. The Independent hopes to see a large portion of this trade remain with Helena, and Helena business men should bestir themselves to maintain the advantage they have always enjoyed in that direction.

Bear this in Mind Too.

St. Louis Globe Democrat.

"Do not forget," says the Boston Herald, (mugwump), "that the surplus revenue this year, after paying the full requirement of the sinking fund, will be $100,000,000." It would be well to bear in mind, also, the significant fact that but for the sagacious and economical way in which the republican party managed the affairs of the government for so many years we should not have any surplus, but, on the contrary, should be paying over $100,000,000 more in interest on the public debt than we have to pay under present conditions.

Progenitor of 192 Children.

New York Journal.

Jacob Groniger, Sr., of Milford township, Juniata county, Penn., was ninety-one years old the other day. These are his descendants: Children, sixteen living and one dead; grandchildren, eighty-six living and twenty-two dead; great-grandchildren, sixty living and five dead; great-great-grandchildren, two dead, thereby being the progenitor of 192 children, 162 of whom are living, many residing in Pennsylvania, Virginia, Illinois, Indiana and Kansas.

Not Yet Enforced.

Milwaukee Sentinel.

The leading democratic paper in Missouri says that, although it is nearly a year since the president issued an order requiring trespassers to remove their wire fences from the public lands, the order is not enforced. But why complain? The democratic organ should take a hint from the mugwump press, and content itself with contemplating the nobleness of the order, without being so unreasonable as to require its enforcement.

Cleveland's Idea Illustrated in Tennessee.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Governor Taylor, of Tennessee, points with pride and gratitude to the fact that there is not a republican left in any federal office in that state. That is to say, in Tennessee, "the mad chase after partisan spoils" has come to an end, for the very good reason that there are no longer any spoils to be obtained.

Flunkey Phelps.

Atlanta Constitution.

There can be no doubt that the democratic party of this country has a tremendous load to carry in the person of Phelps, American minister to England. He is the most ridiculous flunkey conceivable—the most unmitigated snob the republic has yet produced.

Reagan Forgot to Regulate Train Robberies.

Atlanta Constitution.

Texas, the home of Judge Reagan, the great railroad regulator, is the scene of the latest train robbery, and one of the most daring on record. Railroad regulation, like charity, might do well to begin at home.

On the Shelf at Home.

Kansas City Times.

In proportion as prohibition is being rigidly enforced in Kansas it is driving the saloon from the street to the private residence. This is a result which follows just as naturally as that the falling apple follows the laws of gravitation.

They have Cleveland on the Anxious Seat.

Louisville Courier-Journal (dem.)

There is reason to believe that the president himself is not as insensible as he was formerly; and, in future, we may look for more democrat and less mugwump in his view of the (civil service reform) subject.

Real Prosperity Against Ideal Pictures.

Nashville Union (dem.)

The great prosperity that has attended the growth of the United States under the protective system can not be offset by anything but ideal pictures of what might come to the nation under free trade.

FORFEITURE BILLS

[illegible] report comments severely upon the failure of congress to pass some of the important forfeiture bills and says some very crooked [illegible] was done by land attorneys and shyster lawyers in connection with the forfeiture of [illegible] grants, and in many instances settlers had been duped and defrauded by [illegible] men who had been posing [illegible] their friends and in several instances have [illegible] in getting several thousand dollars in [illegible] from people located on land. THE STEAMER IROQUOIS

[illegible] June [illegible] — Private advices from [illegible] states the steamer Iroquois indicate that [illegible] bad condition of this vessel is owing [illegible] to the state of her decks. They [illegible] planned in the year 1881-82, and as they [illegible] of Oregon pine, [illegible] not as durable as Eastern pine, the [illegible] of five years constant service in [illegible] has been sufficient to render her [illegible]. The ship will probably be [illegible] to San Francisco to be repaired if repairs can be made within 10 per cent. of the [illegible] vessel.

VICKSBURG.

The Third Lecture at the Tabernacle Last Evening

The largest audience yet assembled in the series was gathered at the Tabernacle last night and the interest was intense. No description of [illegible] a happy style will do him justice. He [illegible] be heard. The lecture began by sketching [illegible] of the principal military characteristics of [illegible] Mississippi valley. That valley is enclosed [illegible] steep bluffs, but it is only rarely [illegible] crooked river in its interminable wind [illegible] washes the base of the bluffs. For most of [illegible] its banks are low flat jungles creased [illegible] a labyrinth of bayous often overflowed, and [illegible] unfit for the operations of an army. In [illegible] a country the Federal gun boats could [illegible] their way up and down the river and controlled without hindrance from the enemy. But [illegible] otherwise where the river flows close to [illegible] On such points the Confederates [illegible] too high to be taken or destroyed [illegible] In order to take them [illegible] co-operation of an army was requisite. [illegible] the Confederates lost one of these [illegible] the whole river down to [illegible] Such points were [illegible] Fort Pillow, Memphis, Vicksburg and [illegible] Hudson. Of these Vicksburg and Port [illegible] peculiarly important, because the [illegible] the Red river lay between them. The [illegible] the great highway of supplies [illegible] Louisiana and Arkansas to the rest [illegible] It was the only avenue [illegible] the Confederacy could communicate [illegible] world outside to cut it would be [illegible] of the Confederacy on [illegible] With relation to the Red river [illegible] and Port Hudson were like two great [illegible] covering a gateway, and [illegible] each other. Vicksburg was [illegible] unapproachable by an [illegible] [illegible] side the approaches were all [illegible] at long cannon range by [illegible] the south side no army could land [illegible] imminent risk of starvation for Port [illegible] blocked the way, [illegible] supplies coming [illegible] and Vicksburg itself blocked the [illegible] supplies coming down. The problem [illegible] investing Vicksburg was the one of immense [illegible] The only quarter from which it [illegible] be approached was the rear. In November [illegible] Grant's right wing was at Memphis [illegible] at Corinth. His first plan was to [illegible] through the interior of Mississippi and [illegible] Vicksburg in the rear. This was the [illegible] but it was beset with difficulties. [illegible] railroad from Memphis to Grenada was [illegible] damaged to be available as a line of [illegible] and the line which Grant had [illegible] Columbus to Grand Junction was much [illegible] for safety but nevertheless Grant [illegible] safely as far as the Tallahatchie river [illegible] the same time Sherman descended the [illegible] river and attempted to effect a land [illegible] at the Chickasaw bayou, a little north of [illegible] Grant's advance was abruptly [illegible] The energetic Van Dorn destroyed [illegible] accumulated stores at Holly Springs, while [illegible] cut away several miles of railroad and [illegible] in his rear between Holly Springs and [illegible] This obliged Grant to retreat to the [illegible] Memphis-Corinth and as the wires were [illegible] he was unable to inform Sherman. The [illegible] made his assault at Chickasaw bayou, but [illegible] repulsed with great slaughter.

[illegible] now gave a brief account of the political general, McClernand and his intrigues, [illegible] of Arkansas Post and the concentration of Grant's army on the western bank of the Mississippi opposite Vicksburg. By this [illegible] his first plan for taking Vicksburg was abandoned. With proper support from the government it might have succeeded in spite of [illegible] difficulties. But Grant had other [illegible] military obstacles to contend with, and it was curious to observe how in this atmosphere of political intrigue he was in a measure [illegible] into his difficult and unpromising [illegible] about Milliken's Bend.

Next came an account of Grant's titanic efforts to overcome the natural difficulties of the situation [illegible] his second plan to establish a line of communication below the city first by means of a canal and second by the Lake Providence route [illegible] his third plan to find a route for his army [illegible] the city and beyond Haines bluff first through the Yazoo pass, and second through a labyrinth of bayous. The failure of these plans was graphically illustrated with diagrams and [illegible]

[illegible] these weary experiments were going [illegible] more than two months Porter's fleet [illegible] control of the river below the city and [illegible] ran up past the batteries of Port Hudson. These partial successes led Grant to try [illegible] dangerous experiment of crossing the Mississippi below Vicksburg. He landed at Bruinsburg [illegible] defeated the Confederates at Port Gibson [illegible] forcing them to evacuate Grand Gulf, [illegible] adopted for the moment as a base of [illegible] Grand Gulf was however an inconvenient [illegible] so long as Port Hudson remained in [illegible] of the enemy. For a moment Grant [illegible] of going down and aiding Banks to reduce Port Hudson after which it would be a [illegible] simple matter to return and invest [illegible] Vicksburg. But such a movement would [illegible] so much time, and a fresh Confederate army was being collected at Jackson the capital [illegible] by Joseph Johnston. There was [illegible] prompt action. By a wonderful inspiration of genius Grant suddenly set fortune [illegible] cut loose from his base at Grand Gulf and advanced upon the enemy with only [illegible] as his soldiers could carry in [illegible] haversacks or obtain by foraging. The [illegible] and unparalleled audacity of the [illegible] went far toward insuring its success. [illegible] himself between the armies of Pemberton and Johnston, and defeated the latter at [illegible] and Jackson while Pemberton was [illegible] time in marching against Grant's already [illegible] line of communication. Then turning [illegible] he fell upon Pemberton two [illegible] defeating him at Champion hill and at the [illegible] of the Big Black river. This enabled [illegible] to capture Haines Bluff and make it his [illegible] The problem of investing Vicksburg was [illegible] Its fall when once besieged was [illegible] a question of time unless Johnston should [illegible] in approaching with a sufficient force [illegible] the siege. It was to forestall this possibility Grant attempted to carry the fortifications by storm. After two bloody repulses he [illegible] down to a siege. The surrender of Vicksburg entailed as a consequence the surrender of Port Hudson and the final loss of the Mississippi river to the Confederacy. To find a [illegible] to the campaign in which this great result was achieved we must go back to the first [illegible] campaign of Napoleon in [illegible]

The lecture was admirably illustrated with [illegible] through the stereopticon. The [illegible] lecture will be "Chattanooga" on Wednesday [illegible]

NOTES FROM CENTRALIA

CENTRALIA, June [illegible]

The crops are all looking well, and the farmers generally feel gay and happy.

[illegible] weeks a baseball club was organized by [illegible] the gentlemen of the town, and the [illegible] who are practicing each night will ere [illegible] be a club before long.

[illegible] speaking of the old soldiers there is one [illegible] here, our good landlord of the Centralia [illegible] His sight was almost ruined by the [illegible] of an ammunition wagon. A bullet [illegible] remains in one shoulder to remind him of [illegible] times. One knee-cap is shot off and [illegible] three bullet holes in the same leg, and [illegible] he is pretty badly beaten up.

[illegible] PROSPECTS IN THURSTON COUNTY

OLYMPIA, June [illegible]

According to the most reliable reports for THE OREGONIAN reporter the following statement shows the crop prospects of 1887 in [illegible] county, basing the calculation on figures furnished by prominent farmers residing in the [illegible] precincts of Grand Mound, Yelm, Chambers Prairie, Black River, Union and Mud Bay respectively — Sown or planted during year wheat, 600 acres, oats, 1500 acres, potatoes, 130 acres, hay, 2160 acres, total, 4510 acres. In [illegible] by late rains, none, except in Mud bay, where hay was so injured as to cause a probable falling-off in the yield of 75 per cent. Probable yield on crops this year will be wheat, 20 bushels to the acre, oats, 35 bushels to the acre, potatoes, 200 bushels to the acre, hay, 2 tons to the acre, except in Mud bay.

The average yield on all these crops this year will be larger than last year.

On account of the late rains the planting of crops has been somewhat retarded this year, some of the planting only being done since the rain ceased, which prevents an exact average from being given.

In the vicinity of Tenalcutt large quantities of carrots, mangel wurzel and turnips are being raised this season.

It is generally conceded that the fruit prospects are excellent, and fruit growers consider that the yield will be larger than usual, although somewhat late.

The need of agricultural associations is very much felt in this territory—in fact, the formation of such an institution at the county seat of every county in the territory would go farther towards showing our natural resources than all the pamphlets that can be printed from now till doomsday. Now that the necessity no longer exists for making appropriations for public buildings in the territory, it would be perfectly justifiable for the incoming legislature to appropriate say from $500 to $1000 to each county to assist in the formation of such institutions, and the benefits to be derived thereby would certainly largely exceed the expenditures.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST HOME MANUFACTURES

A [illegible] FROM [illegible]

[illegible] The sub-committee of [illegible] the general [illegible] committee last Friday night that they had contracted with a New York firm to furnish [illegible] worth of fireworks and that the [illegible] the same would be $1 [illegible] making a [illegible] without counting the expense [illegible] from New York to the city of [illegible] consequently [illegible] worth [illegible] The committee [illegible] has the power to send the money [illegible] elected from our citizens wherever it pleases and the committee probably knows quite well why it so sends the money, but the committee goes beyond its latitude and the truth when it states that there will be a far grander exhibition than home talent could produce for the same figures. That remains to be seen.

Now I desire to call the attention of the public to the following facts and I defy any man [illegible] to say that they are not exactly and literally true.

First—Home talent has not been asked or invited to compete or consulted at all in the matter. Not a word was said to our home manufacturer, the man who has been building fireworks here successfully for the past thirty years. And yet the committee has the audacity to assert that home talent cannot compete, publishing to the world that an old Portlander of thirty years experience cannot make fireworks—who knows that he cannot even set them off—but a man must be brought here 3000 miles to do that. Is there another backwoods town in the world thus discriminate against itself?

Now, I, George Hughes, manufacturer of fireworks, and a resident of Portland for the past thirty years, make this proposition to my fellow citizens. I will at any time compete with any manufacturer in the United States, making piece for piece at the same price. A committee appointed by the citizens to decide which are the best production, the amount to be produced being $1000. If decided in my favor I am to receive the $1000. If decided against me I am to receive not one cent. I cannot suffer to have my reputation thus coolly settled by the committee when I was not even seen in the matter, and I want you, my fellow citizens, to decide whether you can afford to have the growing manufactures of your city crushed and falsely declared incompetent by interested parties.

One member of the committee said he had seen the fireworks at the unveiling of Bartholdi's statue and they were better than any shown here. I do not offer to give as much for $1000 as they gave for $35,000, but I will give as much for every dollar as they do and spend every dollar here.

BEN PERLEY POORE IN THE SOUTH

He Had an Unpleasant Experience in Georgia, where he was Socially Ostracised

Athens (Ga.) Letter

The death of Major Ben Perley Poore recalls the fact that for a time he was a resident of Georgia. Mr Poore was preceded to Athens by his father. His first enterprise was the establishment of a sheep farm. After operating this industry for a year or two he finally settled in Athens. A few months after Ben Perley Poore arrived from the north and took up his residence here. About that time the Southern Whig was in successful operation here, its editor and proprietor being James W. Jones. He sold the paper to the elder Poore, and the son became the editor. Fresh from the North, he entertained the views of his section and his treatment of the negroes was from a Northern standpoint uninfluenced by his Southern environment. After holding the helm of the Whig for a year or two he lost caste with the people by his connection with a negro ball. It is not known definitely whether Poore gave the ball or was simply a spectator. It was generally believed that he was present as an interested spectator, as he was said to have participated in the amusement of the evening. This experience was too much for the people. He was cut on the streets, his paper was refused by the subscribers and in a week Poore saw the best thing he could do was to get away and he departed. Poore resented his treatment by the people of Athens ever afterwards.

WHEAT RAISING

A Somewhat Rambling Letter from Mr T. T. Geer

SALEM, June 3

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

My highly esteemed friend, R. D. Allen of Silverton, has submitted to about 15,000 staring readers of THE OREGONIAN another "ghost" of what he can say against the present system of wheat farming in Oregon, but his confessed habit in dealing in ghosts of a subject that is practiced and requires life and energy is what renders his premises false and his conclusions notoriously inconsistent with the facts as known to every successful farmer in the state. If he would emerge, just once, from the shadowy labyrinths of his spectral surroundings and consider the subject of wheat raising, as it is, he would not so readily conclude that the farmers of Oregon are from year to year following a system that years ago began steadily but surely running them into debt.

In discussing this question recently I had occasion to refer to my own experience in wheat raising as evidence which I was sure was true and conclusive [illegible] among other things, stated that in 1884 I raised [illegible] bushels of wheat and oats [illegible] and [illegible] of corn and that besides $500 in hired help I did all the work of producing them except in threshing. I [illegible] stated that I [illegible] I raised [illegible] bushels of wheat on thirty acres of land and that $100 paid all the expenses of raising the [illegible] and [illegible] cents I realized [illegible] net income from the thirty acres.

In printing these facts I had no idea of bragging or what I could do [illegible] but to offer an illustration of [illegible] farmers could [illegible] as well [illegible] and [illegible] their [illegible] of [illegible] half. [illegible] of THE OREGONIAN [illegible] will [illegible] of grain [illegible] more [illegible] amount of [illegible] and [illegible] needed it [illegible] another, and the [illegible] months of the year left in which to [illegible] such [illegible] of [illegible] Allen [illegible] the [illegible] showing at any suspecting public. I will assume that the former readers of THE OREGONIAN [illegible] better [illegible] know that I have raised [illegible] I claim [illegible] in 1884 by myself [illegible] no great [illegible] that [illegible] bushels of wheat for [illegible] realized $[illegible] Allowing as much as [illegible] for outside expenses, which was vastly too much, I had $[illegible] left as net income from my wheat crop, even at [illegible] cents per bushel.

Rejecting the idea therefore, that there is any element of bragging in the amount of grain raised by myself, or even unusual I will consider the question of profit. If Mr Allen's idea that a farmer's own work is just as expensive to him as though he had hired it done, were correct, of course his theory would be also that wheat cannot be raised at thirty bushels to the acre for less than 60 cents per bushel. Now since every farmer in Oregon knows better than this it would seem to be an absolute waste of time to consider such a proposition but with me it is anything to please him so, let us see.

In an "itemized account" published some weeks since in THE OREGONIAN, he estimates that it costs about $21 to raise an acre of good wheat, first, because it costs $1.50 to plow the land. I have already asked him whether the cost referred to hiring it plowed, or to your plowing it yourself, but he fails to say. Of course since it means hiring it done, it follows that if you plow the land yourself it comes cheaper. How much? If it comes any cheaper why doesn't he hurry to modify that itemized account? If it does not come any cheaper, why do farmers universally believe that it is more profitable to dispense with hired help and as far as possible do their own work.

Now, if a reduction is to be made as a recognized difference between hiring your work done and doing it yourself, where is the reduction to stop? I think Mr Allen will be forced to admit that it is much cheaper to do his own work. If so, why? If it costs $1.50 to hire an acre of land plowed why is it any cheaper to do it myself? Is not my time worth as much as that of my hired man? And if it is worth $1.50 for him to plow the land, why is it not worth as much for me to plow it? But it is not, for Mr Allen must admit that I can do it cheaper than my hired man and we arrive at the original question where is the reduction in the difference of cost to stop.

Now I undertake to say, as the lawyers say, that the reduction does not really stop until the entire amount of the wages is wiped out, which he may say amounts to a farmer working for nothing. Well it simply means that a farmer's work is not any expense to himself. A hired man's work is all expense to the farmer, while his own work, instead of being expense, is on the other side of the balance and is an actual profit to you, you see. This rule applies to a worker in any line of business and presupposes, of course, that the line of business is successfully managed.

Mr Allen is subservient to the perfectly unaccountable idea that when a man works for himself he is running in debt to an amount equal to what it would cost to have hired the same work done. He says if I hire an acre of land plowed I am in debt as to the expenses of that acre $1.50 and he says if I hired it plowed the amount of indebtedness is just the same. You see he makes no difference. Then why not hire it all done? And if I am in debt $1.50 by plowing one of my own acres, how can the hired man do the same work without running in debt to [illegible] can a hired man without property of any kind work without running in debt when that is the fate that overtakes the employer when he does the same work? Or is Mr Allen too dull to see that a farmer's own work is profit and the same work performed by a hired man is as he says expense?

What is work, anyway? Is it something Mr Allen, that can be measured, or weighed, or estimated in any other definite manner? Is it something tangible that is an expense to the man who is so unfortunate as to be the possessor of a certain amount of it? And a [illegible] accumulates in his muscles and system generally, will it, if he fail to give it outlet at regular intervals ultimately drive him to spontaneous combustion and a premature grave?

I don't know, but I think not. My own opinion is that a healthy man's work doesn't cost him a cent, and whether he works a day or is idle that day, he is in either case equally well supplied with that indefinite article. It was the custom of the human family long before either Mr Allen or myself were born to live—that is to eat and wear clothes, and if I worked all day Monday, and Tuesday remained perfectly idle my expenses were just the same for as ordinary expenses go on both days, and if I worked a day I still am just as much "work" on hand as though I had not worked.

Therefore when a farmer raises a bushel of wheat "all by himself," there is no system of reasoning under the sun that can make it cost him 75 cents if his yield has been thirty bushels per acre, and "herein" is why farmers everywhere in Oregon are preparing for wheat next year, when the average yield cannot be expected to exceed twenty bushels per acre. It must seem strange to Mr Allen that he should know more about this business than the combined wisdom of all the farmers in Oregon, but he does. He is indeed a prodigy from Drift creek, a sort of agricultural John the Baptist, showing the deluded farmers of Oregon the beauties of the new dispensation, when they will be compelled to hire their work done in order to save money.

That I raised 1300 bushels of wheat on thirty acres and that [illegible] 60 cents and netted myself $600 Mr Allen calls a "yarn No. 2" and proceeds to "discuss" it. He first estimates the cost of the seed wheat at $50. I sowed thirty six bushels which, at 60 cents per bushel, the ruling price then, amounted to $21.60 instead of $50. He next states my time must have cost $10, because he says I could not make it myself. Well I did in the seed wheat and if my time would have been excepted from my expenses if I had made it and he impliedly admitted it should, then we will eliminate from the expense, by his authority, the $10. [illegible] cents per bushel for threshing made $[illegible] added to the time, makes $[illegible] I worked out a sufficient amount in harvest to repay all my team help in threshing, and [illegible] I still have $[illegible] of the $[illegible] outside expenses with which to pay my [illegible] lose lands, and it would more than do it. My estimate of $100 was apparently too high.

All his remarks about wear and tear of farm, squirrel poison, blue vitriol, etc., is merely [illegible] My farm is in decidedly better condition for wheat raising to-day than it was ten years ago. When the farmer practices diversified industry, as all good wheat farmers do, there is no need of our land "deteriorating," and it is not. Last year I had twenty acres of land that yielded 1000 bushels of wheat and eight acres of the twenty had been in cultivation since 1848. My father first plowed the land during that year, and with the exception of the occasional rest which all farmers periodically allow their land it has been in continuous service since. With good farming our land improves.

And he says I make no note of the days my wife was "slaving" over a hot stove cooking for an army of hungry threshers etc. Mr Dan Early threshed that 1300 bushels of wheat in three quarters of a day, and the "hungry threshers" therefore ate two meals. I have three grown daughters, the youngest of whom weighs 160 pounds, and their mother was not allowed to so much as see the kitchen except to eat her dinner. Such girls are a necessary accompaniment to wheat raising, and of course farmers who do not afford them thereby signalize their disqualification for that or any other business.

Mr. Frazier says half the farms in the Willamette valley are under mortgage. His estimate is much too high, but if Mr Allen will turn to an official statement by the department of the interior, he will see that in Illinois and Michigan fully 33 per cent. of the farms are similarly situated and in Kansas 50 per cent. of them are so. THE OREGONIAN published these figures recently, and commented upon them. How about that, Mr Allen? The states mentioned make no specialty of wheat farming, and yet they have more mortgaged farms than we. They raise all kinds of products that grow out of the soil and yet are in that condition that Mr Allen says grows out of wheat farming. How does it come, Mr Allen?

Very recently THE OREGONIAN had a very interesting editorial on "state decay" and the states mentioned were universally those that not only do not raise wheat, but [illegible] all their soil capacity to the production of small things. How about that, Mr Allen? How does it come that to-day the farmers of the Willamette valley are just as prosperous as those of any other state in the Union? They raise a fact, will Mr Allen deny it?

But [illegible] Mr Allen remarks [illegible]

IN [illegible] THE [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

The writer in [illegible] May [illegible] The [illegible] of which we hear so [illegible] but for [illegible] the [illegible] while [illegible] of [illegible] I would [illegible] but [illegible] the intelligence behind [illegible] I [illegible] suggest [illegible] had [illegible] of the matter [illegible] I have found [illegible] very [illegible] It was [illegible] and [illegible] if the means that are offered for a personal [illegible] not [illegible] that they will not [illegible] It is asked: If [illegible] the [illegible] spirits [illegible] why [illegible] they not come in some [illegible] acceptable way [illegible] I can answer in all candor that I do not know why, and I accept their statements that they come in the only way and manner that is open for them [illegible] being very much yet like human [illegible] the places that they are the most [illegible] If a belief in these things is only an evidence of a weak and disordered mind there are a great many who are affected and the disease is spreading at a rapid rate and it surely behooves those who are level headed to rush to the front and if I would be allowed to suggest an antidote or cure it would be that better testimony, because it is certainly the lack of that testimony and the hungering of the soul for something more solid than is offered that is causing many to seek the present manifestations. I know there is no body who is more ready to place his testimony in the balance and carefully weigh it [illegible] than the spiritualist, and it is [illegible] always [illegible] when the testimony is against him. Simply stating to him that he is wrong will not give any further proof than the statement is not satisfactory.

The subject is of sufficient importance to deserve further consideration. If Samuel was seen by the woman down at Endor and also by Saul, and if Moses and Elias were seen by Peter, James and John, and also if it was one "of thy brethren the prophets" that showed John the wonderful city, the spiritualists naturally argue that if those who once lived in mortal form were seen after the change called death there is [illegible] reason why they may not be seen again. It is true the practice of communing with the dead was condemned, but there were a great many things condemned in those days that are practiced now without one thought about that condemnation. If the present manifestations are the work of [illegible] spirits [illegible] [illegible] we may [illegible] the believers in Jesus [illegible] active as they [illegible] using [illegible] cast them out [illegible] the failure [illegible] the believers in Jesus [illegible] do the things he said they should [illegible] that has made a great many [illegible] for something else. In the testimony given by the spirits [illegible] Jesus they [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] The [illegible] following [illegible] will save us [illegible] [illegible] the spirits [illegible] They say the [illegible] while the believers [illegible] Paul says [illegible] to the word of wisdom, to another the word of knowledge by the same spirit, to another faith by the same spirit, to another the gift of healing by the same spirit, to another the working of miracles, to another prophecy, to another discerning spirits, to another divers kinds of tongues, to another interpretation of tongues. All this is within our reach and the gates of inspiration are open through which can flow food and consolation to the hungering and testimony to every honest skeptic.

The teachings of the spirits are so plain that they are captivating a great many, and if it is only to let [illegible] the [illegible] that [illegible] who have the light doing their duty in standing idly by and not [illegible] in their armor and going to the front. The spiritualists stand ready for any conflict where proper quarter is shown them and if they are in deep darkness it surely will be an easy victory for those who are in the light. One [illegible] we would ask and that is it leaves an open question as to what it is that is in the deep darkness. In this age of steam and electricity, with its rapid strides of human advancement, is it wonderful that the inspiration of [illegible] years ago fails to entirely satisfy the soul longings in that direction and again is it wonderful that when there comes that which is to feed the craving hungering soul that it is again rejected by those who are not able to receive it.

THOMAS BUCKMAN

NOT A PARALLEL CASE

LOBITANI, June [illegible]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

A recent issue of your journal contained the following quoted sentiment: Judging from what one reads it will not be long before there will be an army of cranks who will want to stop other people from drinking tea and coffee. There is already a society to stop the use of tobacco "peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must." Will you all permit me to say that while I neither belong to this "anti tobacco" society nor any other similar society, league or union I think the author of this sentiment is unnecessarily alarmed. The tea and coffee drinker and the tobacco smoker and chewer occupy very different positions. One drinks his beverage whether it be good or bad for him, by himself and for himself without any alleged or imaginable annoyance to any one else. In the other case he [illegible] himself [illegible] a nuisance and [illegible] everything.

When you get to [illegible] the tea is too [illegible] or the [illegible] of his pre[illegible] matter what a [illegible] he [illegible] ing his [illegible] the victim of his [illegible] indulgence. And for [illegible] weeks after his visit he leaves [illegible] sweet reminder [illegible] of his presence behind him, to the annoyance of every [illegible] guest or [illegible] after [illegible]

If you spend an hour in his [illegible] he [illegible] carry back with you, in your clothes, [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] the same offensive [illegible]

But this is by no means all [illegible] the difference between the tea and coffee drinker and the tobacco victim. When the tea or coffee drinker [illegible] his favorite drink, [illegible] on all the men and women and children he passes in the street, when he sits at his window and squirts every other minute [illegible] of the people as they go by, when on some [illegible] or [illegible] devotee takes his [illegible] at the post office delivery or ticket office of the [illegible] railroad and every now and then dusts [illegible] the [illegible] of his favorite cup on the clothes of men and women or into their faces as they [illegible] and go, when he insists on pouring pools of his chosen drink on the floors of all the public places he frequents, street cars and omnibuses, then the tea and coffee drinker and the tobacco nuisance will begin to occupy similar places, with a vast difference, however, in favor of the former.

But I want to say a word more. If there are any "tea and coffee or tobacco cranks" who think that such nuisances can be abated by prohibitory laws, leagues, etc., they are greatly mistaken. You can't make a gentleman by an act of the legislature. You can't dislodge the spirit of selfishness, insensibility, and "don't care a copper" for what other people like or dislike, by any edict of court or council. And all the columns that you or I can write from now to New Year will weigh no more with one of these inbred tobacco smokers than a whiff of his cigar. Happy should we be if we could say something to save one clean mouthed, sweet-breathed boy, from this vile and disgusting habit, this wretched and deplorable bondage.

PORTLAND, TUESDAY, JUNE 7, 1887.

OBSOLETE FROM ITS PASSAGE.

The so-called "opium act," passed by the last legislature, provides in substance that no person shall give away or sell opium, morphine, eng-she or cooked opium, hydrate of chloral, or cocoaine, except to those who present a prescription for the same from a physician, or a regular qualified pharmacist; that no physician or pharmacist shall prescribe the drugs above-named, unless he or she shall have previously registered with the county clerk of the county wherein he or she resides and practices his or her profession, his or her name and address, the name and location of the institution of which he or she is a graduate, and the date of graduation. Physicians or pharmacists are forbidden to prescribe the drugs named for any person except for the cure of disease, and shall prescribe only in such cases. Physicians and pharmacists who prescribe any of these drugs shall keep a record, which shall be open to public inspection, of all cases in which they have prescribed opium or any of the above-named drugs, state date of prescription, the name and residence of the patient, the disease, the dose and directions. The word physician, as used in this act, shall be understood to mean any person who has graduated at a recognized school of medicine, and who has a diploma therefrom. The word pharmacist shall be understood to mean any graduate of a recognized school of pharmacy, and who has a diploma therefrom, or shall be able to prove to the county clerk that he or she has not had less than four years' practical experience in the drug business. The pharmacist selling the drugs is obliged to retain the prescription, and to keep it open for public inspection. Any person who violates any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50, nor more than $250, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty days, nor more than ninety days, or by both fine and imprisonment, at discretion of the court.

Section 12 says that, "as this is act is deemed of great public importance, it shall become a law immediately after its passage and approved by the governor." This act was approved by the governor February 21, 1887, and has therefore been a law about three months and a half, and we have ascertained, on inquiry, that the only one of its provisions that has been complied with has been section 1, which obliges those who sell the drugs in question to procure a license from the county clerk at an expense of $1, valid for one year from date of issue. The act forbids opium and morphine, which is an alkaloid made from crude opium, just as cinchona bark is the crude material from which quinine is made; but the act does not forbid the sale of laudanum, which is the tincture of opium; it does not forbid the sale of Magendie's solution, which is a solution of morphine in water; it does not forbid the sale of sulphate of morphine, of acetate of morphine or a dozen other alkaloids of opium. As a brutum fulmen directed at the morphine or opium habit the act is absurd. If it had forbidden the sale of opium in all its forms, whether tinctures, alkaloids or solutions, it would have swept briefly and completely the whole field; but as it reads, you can no more prosecute a man for selling laudanum and Magendie's solution under an act forbidding the sale of opium than you could prosecute a man for selling quinine under a statute forbidding the sale of cinchona bark. Therefore, as a club to coerce the "opium fiend" to change his ways, this act is anything but a hot poker.

The provision which forbids physicians or pharmacists to prescribe opium or morphine except for the cure of disease is absurd, for opium or morphine has often to be given to the victim of the opium or morphine habit, not to "cure disease" at all, but as a sedative for a condition of nervous agony or stimulant for bodily prostration, which no physician or pharmacist would hesitate to relieve. The victim in certain stages of alcohol is given small doses, not to "cure the disease" but to relieve a condition of nervous excitement or bodily prostration which it would be inhuman and dangerous to leave alone with its suffering. To relieve suffering is one thing; to "cure disease" is quite another.

The provision obliging physicians who prescribe opium, morphine or hydrate of chloral to keep a record, "open to public inspection," of all cases in which they have prescribed any of these drugs, the name of the patient, the dose and directions, is one that no physician can possibly obey without violating the confidence between patient and physician. Does any sane man suppose that a reputable physician would turn over for "public inspection" such a record? A physician might give a patient opium or morphine for a great many reasons that it would be an outrage on all moral delicacy and professional honor between patient and physician to reveal to the public. Suppose when Daniel Webster was prostrated by alcoholism, as he was at times in his old age, a statute of this sort had been in force in New England, does anybody suppose his attendant physician would have entered his name as an opium patient, and his "disease" in a record for public inspection, no matter what the penalty was for his neglect? Does anybody suppose, if a decent physician gives a woman patient a hypodermic injection of morphine for a considerable period that he will state the fact, her name, and her residence and disease in a record kept for public inspection? Does anybody suppose that if a doctor of ordinary practice should keep a record of every time he prescribed opium or morphine or gave a hypodermic injection, he would have any time left for proper attention to his daily business? This act is obsolete from its passage. There is not a physician in Portland who would not rather be fined every week under it rather than keep such a record of name, residence, dose and disease for public inspection, because nobody would employ him if he dreamed the doctor intended to obey the law.

We are particular and full in our review of this act, because of its absurdity, which makes it obsolete from the start; and yet the ease with which it was passed is a complete answer to those persons who say that if prohibition is once voted in Oregon it will mean that prohibition has public opinion behind it. It will mean nothing of the sort; it is the easiest thing in the world to get a bad law passed which claims to be a "general cure-all." Here is this opium law which went through the legislature easily, and yet there is no more public opinion behind its absurd provisions than there is behind a wandering tramp or horse-thief. It has been a law for more than three months. No doctor has obeyed it, or will obey it; no druggist has obeyed it, beyond the license; no druggist will obey it, because neither doctor nor druggist can afford to obey it, in self-respect or moral honor.

It is a powerful local illustration of how important it is in legislating against vices to mix your thoughts with what Turner said he mixed his colors, viz.: "brains." In other words, mix your moral reform with common sense.

STILL A PREGNANT QUESTION.

Though the democratic party has had strong lodgment in the national government ever since 1874 it has never since the great war had unrestrained power. For two terms they had a majority of the house of representatives. But the senate and the administration were opposed to them. Once they had possession of both houses of congress, but the president stood in the gap. In the house of the Forty-ninth congress they had a large majority and the administration, but the senate was against them. In the Fiftieth congress they will have the house, but by only a small majority, and likewise the administration. But the senate will still bar the way to complete power.

The San Francisco Bulletin, after reciting this history, says: "What will happen if that check should be removed in 1888 is not very difficult to divine. The sinister features of the democracy, and they are not all fiscal in their nature, would soon begin to disclose themselves. There are a great many things now kept carefully in the background that would acquire a tremendous importance."

This no doubt is a correct judgment, and so is the following from the same paper: "If the democracy had control of the national government and of the requisite number of states, it would amend the constitution of the United States in particulars that no one just now considers possible. There is, further, a supreme court well stricken in years, which if democratic ascendency is maintained, will be quite certain in a very short time to be greatly modified. So far in the national government the democracy have been either manacled or tethered. It has not been able to carry out a single democratic idea. It is only by compromises with republicans intrenched in some department of the government that it has been able to do anything at all. What is to happen if it should be turned loose is as pregnant a question now as at the close of the war.

LITERARY FAVORITES OF WOMEN.

A new life of Charles Reade, author of that immortal fiction, the "Cloister and the Hearth," has been recently published. Reade came of good stock, but a vein of eccentricity ran through both his parents. A brilliant, impetuous boy, he was sent to a brutal schoolmaster, who so fiendishly whipped the boys, early and late, that it was a wonder the boy was not driven to flight and ruin by the brutal beatings he received. The Rev. Mr. Compton Reade, the great novelist's biographer, says that his mind did not begin to develop until he left this hellish school, and he writes "of a child of 6" who was tortured by this fiend, and "in after years that same child as a man, and a dying man, cursed the name of Slatter, though that merciless torturer, who had rendered his childhood a hell, lay under the sod of Iffley churchyard."

Reade went to Oxford, where he neglected his studies, but was an enormous reader of general literature, played the violin and danced the double shuffle to its music on his father's dining-room table, played cricket splendidly, wrote an essay that won him favor and the friendship of the president of Magdalen College, who saw his talent when others deemed him only "a mystery." He seems to have been, like Prof. Wilson, a man of athletic tastes, with great passion for general literature. He studied for the bar, but never practiced. While at Oxford he had read far and wide in the great libraries; he had little to live on save the very small income coming to him from his Magdalen Fellowship, which he won, as he always confessed, by a tremendous burst of cramming, for he was not a good all around scholastic worker.

So Reade began his literary career writing dramas for the stage. His first dramas were dreary and a sensible actress advised him to write a novel. Reade was angry at first but finally took her advice and surprised himself by his brilliant success as much as George Eliot was when she took her husband's advice, tried her hand at fiction and found her husband had divined her genius. Reade is placed below Thackeray, but close to Dickens. Had his novels all been of the same high sweep and sweetness as "The Cloister and the Hearth," he would have stood on the same level as Dickens. Dickens, in his serious noblest vein, never did any bit of work better than "The Cloister and the Hearth," unless we except, as perhaps we must, his "Tale of Two Cities," and yet Reade drew a more splendid and sweet woman than Thackeray or Dickens ever sketched when he painted that moving picture of lovely Margaret Brandt, who suffered so much pain and sorrow; who loved so much and lost her dear husband while the church gained a most eloquent priest. The last scene between Margaret Brandt and her lost Gerard, when this lovely women, dying of the plague, bids him farewell, who was at once her lost lover and her father confessor, is as full of overpowering pathos as any scene in English fiction, and the "Cloister and the Hearth" deserves what Swinburne wrote when he said that it is "among the very greatest masterpieces of narrative, while its tender truthfulness of sympathy, its ardor and depth of feeling, the constant sweetness of its humor, the frequent passion of its pathos, are qualities in which no other tale of adventure so stirring and incident so exhaustible can pretend to a moment's comparison with it."

Reade has written one very great book, and it will always be immortal, for it has the true genius of dramatic pathos; less of the smell of the footlights than nearly all Dickens' sentimental work, while it is as sweet and mellow a picture of Flemish life and love in the days of the fifteenth century as Thackeray drew in the Queen Anne portrait gallery of Henry Esmond. Reade was a true friend, a noble, kind-hearted, generous handed gentleman; sensitive, vain, pugnacious, but truthful to foes and very tender to all who were in trouble. It is curious that the men who have done women the most justice; who have written the noblest things of them; who have painted their faces in the spirit of love when the woman's spirit was sweet and square in spite of sorrow; who have painted women of soul and sacrifice rather than women of baleful passions and selfish career, these men are seldom favorite authors, even with excellent women. Few women read Shakespeare, Thackeray, George Eliot, or Charles Reade, compared with the women who read Byron, Tennyson or Dickens. The melodramatic or the sentimental genius is a woman's taste in literature in pictures of her own sex when she cares to look at them at all. She will look at a masculine character that has severe simplicity of strength and courage and nobleness in it longer than at a noble woman's face, simply because women do not care for women as they do for men, either within or without literature, and so this explains chiefly why the men who draw the noblest pictures of fine womanhood are not popular favorites with the mass of women who read anything but trash.

Of THE OREGONIAN's remarks on the Guilford Miller land case and on President Cleveland's letter thereon, the Colfax (W. T.) Commoner says: "THE OREGONIAN takes the singular position, that because it may develop that Miller had no claim to the particular land in controversy for the reason that he was not a qualified homesteader, therefore other claims of other men, who settled long prior to the selections of the railroad, and who were qualified homesteaders, should lose their lands." THE OREGONIAN took no such position. Its purpose was simply to show that, as to all the material facts in the Guilford Miller case on which he wrote the celebrated letter, President Cleveland was mistaken. All settlers who made their entries prior to selections by the railroad will hold their lands, and should hold them.

---

The New York Times says: "The Blaine papers for the last two years have been compelled to simulate a fond interest in Irish-Americans, a class which they had for some thirty years previously denounced with vehemence and great private satisfaction as the bane of our politics." THE OREGONIAN is not among the "Blaine papers," and so doesn't feel pinched by this remark. It feels bound in truth to say, however, that it was the journals that now constitute the mugwump press—the New York Times, Harper's Weekly, the New York Evening Post and others—that "denounced Irish-Americans with vehemence and great private satisfaction" during so many years. And it was their support of Cleveland, more than anything else, that caused so many thousands of the Irish-Americans to vote for Blaine.

---

Estimates of the population of New York city, made by the board of health, give a total of 1,688,423. In 1880 the population of the city was 1,206,577. While there is a probability that the present population is overestimated, yet it is certain that New York is growing at a more rapid rate than at any former time in her history. This is directly due to the introduction of rapid transit. The heaviest increase is uniformly in the up-town wards. It is believed by enthusiastic New Yorkers that by 1890 the population will be nearly or quite 2,000,000. In 1870 it was 942,292; so that it is expected at least to double in twenty years.

---

A distinguished clergyman of the Presbyterian church tells THE OREGONIAN that he is confident there will soon be a reunion of the southern branch of Presbyterianism with the main body of the denomination. It is the authority of a very few men in the South, now growing old, that has prevented such reunion hitherto. It must indeed strike every sensible person that the excuse for refusal to reunite is very trifling, when its principal ground is the allegation that it would bring about the social equality of the black and white races. Besides, if all the missionary money spent to convert Africa has for its object the taking of the colored man to the white man's heaven, might not the two races as well get a speaking acquaintance here? Or perhaps these old fellows of the era of slavery are not yet convinced that the negro ought to be included among those for whom Christ died.

WHAT ARE SCIENTIFIC CONDITIONS?

The spiritist evangelists who expound periodically in THE OREGONIAN seem to be as accurate in their reasoning methods as the Irishman who humorously said "a mile in Ireland is longer than a mile in England; for why? Because St. Patrick measured them as he rode by at full speed in his coach and six." This story of Irish wit is not a bit more absurd than the following statements made in our last Sunday's issue:

> Let a man of science attempt to demonstrate some newly-discovered phase of natural law, and some one who was ignorant of every principle concerning it should say to him that he must dictate the circumstances and conditions under which these demonstrations were to be made, the scientist would abandon the job in disgust.

This absurd reasoning does not distinguish that the alleged phenomena presented as proof of spirit communication cannot be accepted by science and ought not to be accepted until the very question at issue is tested by the sense of sight, light and touch. The question is whether the so-called phenomena are facts or frauds or fancies, illusions and delusions. If we are shut out from the exercise and application of these tests whenever their application is necessary to conclusively settling the question whether we are dealing with a material fact of supernatural origin and solution, which defies science, or are dealing with a most material and musty fraud or stale delusion, which denies science a fair chance then we are justified in refusing to accept as supernatural these alleged miracles which refuse to let science fairly test their validity.

To illustrate, suppose a man of science should erect a thousand miles of telegraph wire and send, like a flash, daily, for weeks, a thousand different messages to and fro to a thousand different persons and make absolute proof that the force of electricity was capable of transmitting in five minutes intelligence back and forth that no means of human transportation could convey in the mails in less than forty-eight hours. In this case it would be unreasonable to say because I cannot see this force you call electricity, because I cannot pour it like water into a tumbler, because all I see is your wire, your batteries, therefore, I deny your force. The fact that the intelligence had been instantaneously sent and received over a thousand miles of space could be shown by clouds of witnesses and in various ways. Electricity would be as clearly proved to exist as a force as either air or heat, and the man would be a fool who should say, I do not believe there are any such forces as air or electricity, because I cannot bite a section out of a fogbank or a breeze, because I cannot see electricity passing along your wire. But suppose the telegraph man should say "that woman you see in my room in the dim light is the materialized spirit of an Indian girl who died 100 years ago," and I say let me turn on the gas, talk with the squaw, touch her and see whether she is an Indian girl or a white impostor, or whether she is really an Indian who died a century ago. Under these circumstances, to tell me that I can't turn on the light, can't talk with her, touch her or examine any proofs of her alleged supernatural origin is to estop all proof of her real character with a theory of conditions that make a farce of investigation. The essential proofs of the existence of electricity have been furnished by genuine material phenomena, but the essential proofs in the case of the assertion that the spirits of the departed can and do materialize are not furnished at all to the testing senses of touch and sight, exercised under the condition of full light and free examination. Again we quote:

> Were this a matter that could be brought before the courts, and the testimony allowed that would be admitted under all circumstances, it could be established beyond controversy; but in this case the expert is generally ruled out, and testimony of the one who has always failed is admitted, and the verdict rendered to the general public in accordance.

The very question at stake is whether the fellow is an expert or only a fraud; you might as well expect to call a man suspected of forgery as an expert to swear to the genuine character of the signature he was believed to have cleverly imitated. Another "logician" quotes THE OREGONIAN as saying:

> "We are not contending with the spiritualism of the bible, neither do we criticise the speculations of Swedenborgianism; we do not affirm or deny the truths of either; but we do declare that the so-called material facts or phenomena of modern spiritualism to be unworthy of respect or investigation." I call that "curious logic" indeed, when to every candid and careful investigator it must appear that the only substantial difference between the two is a matter of time—then and now.
>
> It is not logical to say that a phenomenon occured one hundred or eighteen hundred years ago, that could not under certain circumstances again occur. THE OREGONIAN denies the fact of the phenomenon of spiritual manifestations of to-day, and would have, in order to be consistent, to take the same ground were it to discuss the spiritualism of the bible or that of Emanuel Swedenborg. If not, why not?

THE OREGONIAN never said that a phenomenon that occurred eighteen hundred years ago could not again occur, but it does say that while the spiritualism of the bible and the speculative belief of Swedenborgianism cannot be proved or disproved outside the scriptures, the alleged modern spirit phenomena are part of our present knowledge; are material facts, and do not endure nor allow the test of those senses which science employs in discriminating between fact and fraud, between supernaturalism and superstition; between really the inexplicable and what science is not permitted to explain because stopped by conditions which imply imposition, or delusion, illusion, self-deception, unconscious muscular or mental action. A man who is silly enough to accept present alleged material phenomena as proof of spirit intercourse when he cannot touch or talk or turn on the light of day ought to be sent to this spirit world, whose existence, if proved, would, as Huxley said, only be another argument against suicide.

THE OREGONIAN is asked whether these so-called material proofs of modern spiritism are worthy of belief as genuine. That is a question of to-day, not a question of fact concerning alleged phenomena that date back to Moses, Joshua and Samuel, and Christ. Science cannot call any witnesses or offer any explanation if it does not accept revealed religion; and if it does accept revealed religion and admit miracles of 2000 years ago it is not bound to accept an alleged miracle of to-day that refuses to endure or allow judicial examination, any more than a man is bound to believe in every modern lunatic or pretender who calls himself God's prophet, or God's son, because he believes a real Christ once walked the earth. Because you believe Christ once walked the earth, are you bound to logically believe that every enthusiast is a Christ; because you believe Christ really worked miracles, are you bound logically to accept every magnetic physician and dark-circle mountebank of our day? As for the little girl who was so powerful "a tipping medium," she ought to have been tipped over and had the nonsense spanked out of her.

Naturally Tacoma makes great ado about completion of the railroad over the mountains. Great are that town's anticipations. Meantime Seattle quietly keeps on in her regular course of business, knowing that if the Northern Pacific wants to do the carrying trade of that country it must give her just as good terms and facilities as it gives Tacoma. For Seattle controls the trade of the Puget sound region, and the Northern Pacific cannot do the carrying business of the country and ignore her.

---

There is now proposed in Oregon a new patent method of correcting one objectionable and injurious habit of a portion of our people, by amending the constitution of the state. If this were really an effective method it would be worth while to propose a whole lot of amendments at once; for there are bad habits of mind, temper and appetite innumerable.

THE VANCOUVER AND SELLWOOD ROAD.

THE COMPANY INTEND TO GO AHEAD WITH THE ENTERPRISE.

Though the granting of a franchise to the Morrison Street Bridge Company to operate lines in the city of East Portland gave the Vancouver and Sellwood Company a "black eye," it did not knock them out. They are still in the ring and the officers make no secret of saying that they will push their enterprise to completion with certain modifications. The main line, viz: from Sellwood to Vancouver, they say will be built. A franchise from the city council is not necessary. The laws of the state give them the right to run through the streets of an incorporated city, and they rely on the following sections of chapter 7 of the miscellaneous laws of Oregon:

> Sec. 26. When it shall be necessary or convenient in the location of any road herein mentioned to appropriate any part of any public road, street or alley, or public grounds, the county court of the county wherein such road street, alley, or public grounds may be, unless the same be within the corporate limits of a municipal corporation, is authorized to agree with the corporation constructing the road upon the extent, terms and conditions upon which the same may be appropriated or used, and occupied by such corporation and if any such parties shall be unable to agree thereon, such corporation may appropriate so much thereof as may be necessary and convenient in the location and construction of said road.
> Sec. 27. Whenever a private corporation is authorized to appropriate any public highway or grounds, as mentioned in the last section, if the same be within the limits of any town, whether incorporated or not, such corporation shall locate their road upon such particular road, street or alley or public grounds, within such town as the local authorities mentioned in the last section and having charge thereof shall designate; but if such local authorities shall fail or refuse to make such designation within a reasonable time, when requested, such corporation may make such appropriation without reference thereto.

Should they build as proposed their lines will parallel the bridge company's lines on Fifth street from J to northern limit of the city, U from Fifth to Eleventh, and Eleventh from U to Division. They already have the right of way from Division street to Sellwood. The Sellwood & Vancouver Company will not likely build to Mount Tabor for the reason that two competing lines will not pay. Officers of the company say that nine-tenths of the people are with them, because their road proposes not only to develop East Portland, but the entire district between Sellwood and the Columbia river.

LOGGING ON THE COLUMBIA.

The loggers on the Lower Columbia are as busy as bees. There are at least fifty different camps, with from one to three teams to the camp, and each team putting into the water a daily average of 15,000 feet of good merchantable fir logs. At Knappa are Knapp & Moody, Mitchell & Sold, Marsh & Smith, McFarland & Ross, J. F. Warren, A. Knapp, J. P. Ross & Co., and Knapp & Sutherland. At Skamokawa, H. Alger, Wood & Marshall, Washington Muckle and Wm. Muston (two camps). At Cathlamet, Sprague Marsh and two other camps. At Gray's river, Dan Ross, Wm. McIntish, — Vanderhoff, Tod. Barr and Peter Sanderson. On Cole creek, Leander Michaels and others. Weidler & Ordway's railroad is putting in about 75,000 daily. There are a number of camps on the Clatskanie and on the Cowlitz river and its tributaries. There will be at least 20,000,000 feet of logs put into the water before the season closes. Altogether the outlook for the log crop is good—could hardly be better—as it is expected that before the fall rains set in not less than 150,000,000 feet of fir, cedar and spruce will be harvested. The price is very satisfactory, mill owners paying from $5 to $6 per 1000 feet, according to quality. At this rate the country along the Columbia will soon be stripped of timber, and good logs anywhere within a short distance of that stream will rapidly increase in value.

Kentucky Beats Missouri.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The democratic state ticket in Kentucky is composed wholly of men who were in the Confederate army, with the exception of one who was too old and another who was too young to serve. Thus, it will be observed, the democratic party of Kentucky differs from the democratic party of Missouri only in the respect that it does in occasional instances relax the rule that none but those who actually bore arms against the Union should be considered eligible to office.

BELMONT PARK THE RESIDENTS on Mount Tabor laugh at MALARIA. No case has ever been known to originate on that most beautiful of buttes. Hundreds have been cured by temporary residence there. It is not the MALARIA inhaled during the hours of active business life that kills. It is malaria absorbed during the hours of rest. Slavan the Panama contractor, anchored his men three miles at sea every night and saved their lives whilst DEATH RAN RIOT amongst those ashore. When in the summer months the residents of Portland fly to the seaside or elsewhere, the people at MOUNT TABOR enjoy their fruits and flowers and an Italian summer, and laugh at the fears of Portlanders, and THANK GOD that they do not have to desert their homes, since THERE IS NO MALARIA ON MOUNT TABOR.

[illegible]
Southern Portland is the most desirable suburb on the west side of the Willamette river. Why? Because the land is all good soil, with a favorable undulation; is easily drained and all cleared ready to build on. It is easily reached by the macadam road, direct from the city, [illegible] the property; a public stage makes three round trips daily from the Red House; [illegible] there; the steamer Sellwood makes five landings each way every day; a station on the west side narrow-gauge road is located on the tract, and the Portland & Willamette Valley Railroad Company have located a station and terminal buildings on the property and building will be commenced forthwith.
This is the only level and cheap suburban land available for the future growth of the city; and lastly, the owners have put the prices and terms so low as to be within the reach of all.
FOR A LIMITED TIME lots are offered [illegible], on cheap and liberal terms. Lots are 50 by 100 feet, and are sold for cash, or part cash and balance on time, payable in [illegible] ments. That these lots will rapidly enhance in value there can be no question, and for a home or an investment this is an opportunity not to be missed. I will take pleasure in showing the property, or giving any information to intending purchasers.

SPECIAL BULLETIN FOR MAY

SIGNAL SERVICE, U S ARMY,
DIVISION OF THE PACIFIC,
SAN FRANCISCO, June 1, 1887

WEATHER.—But one storm of any violence appeared on the Pacific coast during the month. This passed from the ocean to the east, over northern Washington territory on the 7th, accompanied by dangerous winds off Cape Flattery. In Oregon and Washington territory the first half of the month was marked by daily showers and cool weather, and the last half by continuous fair weather and high temperatures. In California rain fell only in scattered showers, except in the extreme northern portion of the state, where rain was general on the 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th. On the 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th the temperature was unusually high over Northern and Central California, during the prevalence of the "north winds." On the 28th a maximum temperature of 97 degrees was reached at San Francisco, this being the highest temperature ever recorded at that point.

MEAN TEMPERATURE.—The mean temperature for the month was about the normal temperature for May in all the Pacific coast districts, the only marked departures being in the north ern portion of the Sacramento valley, where the temperature was about five degrees above the normal, and at San Francisco, where it was nearly three degrees below. In Oregon and Washington territory and in the remaining portions of California the temperature ranged from one to two degrees above the average May temperature.

RAINFALL.—The monthly rainfall was above the average May rainfall in Western Washington territory and Northwestern Oregon. It was about normal in the extreme northern portion of California and along the coast of Southern California. In all other districts it was below the normal, no rain having fallen over a large portion of California. The following table, compiled from weather reports of the signal service and those of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company show the monthly and seasonal rainfall in detail.

Table showing monthly and seasonal average rainfall and total precipitation for May, 1887 with the seasonal rainfall to May 31 1887

THE RAILWAY BRIDGE

Mr George R Morrison, the bridge engineer, who has been engaged to superintend the construction of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company's bridge across the Willamette at Portland, will arrive here early next week. On Tuesday, the 14th inst, he will meet Mr Potter, the new vice president of the Union Pacific and allied lines, and they will select the site. There are three proposed sites, all between G and N streets, and about the only difference in them is the matter of the approach from the east side and the length. Neither one presents any engineering difficulties.

Immediately on the selection of a site the work of construction will begin, and the bridge will be pushed forward to completion without delay. The building of a passenger station and of freight depots on this side of the river will necessarily follow. It is understood that a conference between the several companies which constitute the Northern Pacific Terminal Company has been called for an early day to take action in the matter.

The Wallowa Valley Chieftain says that stock buyers are wanted in that valley and wanted badly. There is plenty of stock for sale there and it is possible that parties outside are doing the same trick that has been done before and circulating the report that there is no stock in the Wallowa valley for sale. The hills and valleys are full of cattle and horses.

Some of the farmers on the reservation are not satisfied with the way in which it is divided, says the Weston Leader. Many of them have well improved farms on which they have spent a great deal of time and money, and now they are liable to lose them without even pay for their improvements. A remonstrance against the present boundary lines will be sent to headquarters.

Says the Arlington Times: We learn with regret of the death of George Churchill, a well known and respected citizen of Crook county. Baker City Reveille of Friday: Deputy Sheriff John P. Hannon arrived in the city to-day with one Frank Pine, a Cornishman, who, it is supposed, took amalgam from the pans of the mill at the Condor Creek mine. The culprit had his preliminary examination before Justice A. B. Elmer to-day who placed him in $500 bonds to answer before the grand jury. Pine went to jail. He had $70 on his person when the officer arrested him. Capt. Myrick, superintendent of the mine, came over to conduct the prosecution.

Mart Frain, who lives down on the Klamath, while out hunting a few days since, ran across a brown bear with two cubs. With very little trouble he succeeded in killing her and capturing the cubs. About a mile further on he had the good fortune to find another bear, a black, also with two cubs. He dispatched the mother at the first shot, secured the young ones, and now has quite a menagerie at his place. The cubs have already become gentle and are as playful and contented as a litter of puppies.

Late Friday afternoon, says the Pendleton Tribune, thieves entered a room in the rear part of Rothchild & Benn's store, which has been occupied by Mr. Weston, one of the clerks, as a sleeping apartment. They must have made entrance and exit through the back door of the store. They carried off three suits of clothes for Mr. Weston and one for Albert Wurzweiler, besides other minor articles of wearing apparel. The value of the stolen goods is about $100. There is no clue to the perpetrators of this daring daylight robbery as yet.

Jordan Fork, Morrow county correspondence of Bunchgrass Blade: The Williams brothers and James Harper, just returned from the mountains, where they have been rustling and rusticating. They killed a large black bear, which upon a post mortem examination of its stomach, was found to contain, besides the leaden pills administered, a number of metallic overall buttons! The same may be seen by applying to James Harper. And now comes the question: Has the animal sampled some Siwash, or unfortunate sheepherder, or hunter; or has he digested some one's castoff overalls?

Last Monday Eugene Spencer and Mr. McCord of Klamath county were badly injured by the unlooked-for explosion of a blast with which they were working. They were engaged in blasting rocks at the steep grade east of Parker's, and one charge of powder failed to explode after the lighting of the fuse. They attempted to remove the powder from the hole, and both were close down upon it, one of them holding a drill in his hands, when the blast went off. Spencer has suffered the total loss of his eyesight, it is feared, and McCord has lost his left hand, it is reported. Dr. Hemingway of Linkville was called to give them surgical attention.

Chehalis Vidette: L. Solomon, the cannery-man, is here, arranging for fishing, which will begin in August. He states that it is his intention to engage his fishermen from residents of the valley and bring only foremen with him.

Goldendale Sentinel: Six thousand Oregon sheep crossed the Columbia into this county at The Dalles last Sunday and four thousand at Columbus on Monday, and Sheep Commissioner Wm. Harklerоad was right on hand at both places.

The Columbia river is so high at Pasco that preparations for the new bridge are delayed, on which some twenty-five men are employed. The usual fall of snow in the mountains, which is now melting, is causing a fearful overflow of water in the Columbia.

The Spokane Falls Review is informed that a woman traveling on the train bound west fell off some five miles this side of Glendive and sustained injuries which were believed to be fatal. The train picked up the unfortunate woman and backed to Glendive, where she was left.

Corporal Eberhard Weiderhold of the Second cavalry, stationed at Walla Walla, is a German baron in his own right, with a monthly income of $900. This has been established beyond doubt. Weiderhold is in the garrison hospital, the result of an attempt at suicide by poisoning.

George Jennings's locomotive had a miraculous escape from wreck early Tuesday morning, says the Yakima Signal. While running on the reservation, several miles below Union Gap, the engine passed over a rail, from under which all grade had been washed by the freshets. The engine crossed in safety, but on a decided curve.

This is the time of the year for the destructive forest fires to begin their depredations, says the Cheney Sentinel. Wood choppers, campers and persons rusticating in the mountains should be extremely careful not to start these destroying conflagrations. Forest fires started now may burn for four months, and the amount of valuable timber destroyed cannot be estimated. The summer timber fires have already commenced to clog up the atmosphere with a pall of smoke.

IDAHO.

It is estimated that the amount of building improvements this season at Hailey will reach $100,000.

The mines at Broadford may, owing to the lack of coal, be compelled to shut down until the bridges are repaired.

From all parts of Alturas county come reports of the loss of bridges by reason of high water. It will cost the taxpayers several thousand dollars to replace them.

Says a Lewiston paper: In a private letter from Warrens to A. Benson of this city, news came that the residence of Charles Bemis, with everything in it, was consumed by fire last week; loss, about $2500.

A construction train with a crew of thirty or forty men came up the branch Wednesday evening, and the work of repairing the washout above Gimlet is now in progress, says a Hailey paper. Wednesday evening, while attempting to cross a foot-bridge at the foot of Bullion street, two little girls, named respectively, May Richardson and Mamie Stull, got dizzy and fell into the water, says the Wood River Times. The current being quite strong and the water fully two feet deep, the girls might have been drowned but for the presence of mind and courage of Miss Jessie Riley, who instantly jumped into the water and assisted the little girls to shore, before men on the bridge could come to the rescue. All three were thoroughly wet, but sustained no injury.

THE CROP OUTLOOK.

HOW GRASSES, GRAINS, FRUITS AND BERRIES ARE GETTING ALONG—THE PROSPECT EVERYWHERE IS ENCOURAGING.

Rye hay is being cut in the vicinity of Arlington.

Grass, wheat and potatoes are looking well in Morrow county.

Farmers are through seeding in the Butte creek country, in Marion county.

About Spring Ranch, Wasco county, crops are improving since the advent of warm weather.

Grass and grain about Antelope, Wasco county, are reported to be suffering from want of rain.

Southern Oregon farmers have been having favorable weather for the harvesting of their first crop of hay this week.

Milton Eagle: Although grain fields still look fresh and green, yet a good shower just now would be regarded as a godsend.

According to The Dalles Times-Mountaineer, the wheat output of Wasco county this year is estimated at over 2,000,000 bushels.

Haying will soon commence in earnest about Ella in Morrow county. Rye is nearly ready to cut, and the whirr of the mowing machine will soon be heard.

Says a Weston paper: Farmers report that the few hot days did no damage to the grain fields. Grain is still growing luxuriantly and will stand a great deal of dry weather yet.

Jacksonville Times: There is no danger of frosts now and fruit is safe. There will be plenty of all kinds, though peaches and plums will be scarce in some localities.

The young peaches in Ashland are as large as pigeon eggs now, or larger; cherries are ripening and strawberries are improving the daily table fare, says an Ashland paper.

Crops in the Echo country are suffering for want of rain. The weather is very warm and grain in many places is drying out. Last Sunday the thermometer ran up to 103 in the shade.

Ashland Tidings: Good prices, good market for all kinds of produce, and the best crop prospects in the United States all combine to make Southern Oregon farmers happy this spring.

Jackson county will have better grain crops this year than for some time past, and will harvest more grain than ever before—the acreage being greater than at any time in the past.

Haying has commenced and will soon be underway throughout Southern Oregon. The crop will be a large one, but none too much so, as nearly all the hay was fed out to stock last season.

The fruit crop about Macleay will be very light this season. Grain and other farm products look well yet, but a few more such hot days as last Sunday will cut them short; so says a correspondent.

Most everyone is through planting corn in east Umpqua. In the same locality grain does not look very thrifty as a general thing, but timothy is going to be fine if not too dry for two more weeks.

Wm. Rudio passed through town on Tuesday on his way to Arlington, says the Bunch Grass Blade. He says the heat did not injure crops in the John Day country, and that prospects are splendid over there.

About Mount Angel, in Marion county, farmers are done sowing spring grain. Fall wheat looks well and promises a good crop. The fruit crop will be short, there being scarcely any plums at all and very few apples.

Weston Leader: A fruitgrower reports that the crop of strawberries will be very large, that raspberries promise a large yield, while blackberries do not show up well. The apple, pear and other fruit trees will yield a fair crop.

A correspondent writing to a Morrow county exchange from Jordan Fork, says: Everything lovely in this vicinity. Grain fields look smiling; farmers ditto. Weather warm, with fair prospects of a plentiful harvest. Nearly everyone is busy getting out wood from the mountains.

Grass never was better in Morrow county than it is now—That is, where it has had a chance to grow, says a Lexington exchange. On the hill-sides bordering the streams it has been fed and tramped off by home and traveling bands of sheep and cattle, but back a mile or two the bunchgrass looks fine.

Walla Walla correspondence of The Dalles Times-Mountaineer: The wheat crop between the Des Chutes and John Day rivers looks fine and promises a bountiful harvest. From John Day river to Willow creek is a sagebrush scope which is not so pleasing to the eye, but on arriving at Lexington the scene is changed.

J. K. Romig, who has made a tour of the valley this week, reports the outlook for crops this season very flattering, says the La Grande Gazette. All fall sown grain is in excellent condition, especially on the sand ridge. With the present prospects it is probable that the yield this year will be larger than ever known before.

East Oregonian: The wheat fields of Umatilla county still promise a great yield—the greatest for a number of years. There is rarely any complaint about the lack of rain. Last Sunday and Monday were exceedingly warm and the wheat suffered under the heat considerably, but no great injury was done. The hot winds which prevailed all day Monday dried up the moisture in the ground some and would have done great damage if they had continued for several days. The past few days have been cool and delightful, with all the symptoms of rain in the near future. If a good rain falls in the next few days, it will increase the season's crop in Umatilla county fully 20 per cent.

Mr. O. Coolidge, the veteran nurseryman and fruit grower of Ashland, thinks there is no limit to the prolific bearing qualities of the peach, plum, and prune trees in that valley. After having pruned his peach trees this year till his neighbors declared he hadn't left a bearing twig on them, he supposed the Southern Oregon frosts the papers north have been talking about would probably be able to keep the fertile blossoms down to within proper limits, but this week he has had to pick and knock the young fruit off to keep the trees from breaking, until the ground beneath is literally covered with young peaches; and he is still afraid that he has left too many peaches on the trees.

Under the caption of "Benefits of Fall Seeding" the La Grande Gazette says: There are many reasons why it pays to sow wheat in the fall instead of waiting till the busy spring season demands a rush of the work. This is an important matter. It makes just the difference of a farmer being in a position to crowd his work, instead of having his work crowd him. With his seed in the ground, he has ample time to turn his attention in many needed directions in the spring season. There is this much in fall seeding from an economical point of view—for there is just as much economy in time as in material. But the great benefit of fall sowing is now daily witnessed in the grain fields in this county. All fall-sown grain is up high, and has a deep green and thrifty appearance, the ground underneath being sufficiently shaded to retain the largest possible amount of moisture. A great deal of the wheat on the Sandridge is fall sown, and no fields of grain ever looked more promising.

SPIKES, RAILS AND BOLTS.

Progress at the Siskiyou railroad tunnel is slow, only about eight feet being bored daily.

The Oregon Pacific is to be pushed eastward via the Minto pass to meet the U. V. N. W., which is rapidly approaching Boise City.

One gang of the California & Oregon advance grading forces, known as "potholers," moved to the north side of the Siskiyous Tuesday.

The actual cost of handling the snow along the railroad, at the front and on the switchback this last winter, footed up between $75,000 and $100,000.

Ashland paper: As the heavy or mountain grade, going south, commences at Ashland, it is believed that the S. P. R. R. Company will build machine shops at Ashland.

Mount Angel correspondence of the Silverton Appeal: There has been some talk about a Narrow Gauge branch from this place to the Wilhoit springs, but what ground there is for this report is not known.

Three large coaches now run each way daily between Ashland and the end of the California & Oregon track. Another will be added soon, and it is likely that five or six will be required to accommodate the increased travel before the summer is over.

Yakima Republic: It is now quite definitely determined that the Cascade division of the Northern Pacific will be opened for business about the 15th inst., though regular through passenger trains may not commence running for a few days later.

The Lewiston Teller of June 2 learns that a surveying force of the O. R. & N. are on the Little Potlatch, about three miles above Julietta, working their way down from Moscow. The party consists of seventeen in number, and were to pitch camp at Julietta on Tuesday. It is not known who compose the party, nor their destination.

Yakima Signal: The long railroad trestle across Sunday creek, on the west side, caught fire on Sunday last, but was extinguished before any great amount of damage was done. A force of carpenters was at once put to work and the repairs completed in time for the through train of Wednesday.

A party of Heppner business men last week waited on the representatives of the railroad company who are building the road from Wallula to Pendleton, and urged them to continue the line through to Heppner. The course the committee mapped out is up Sand Hollow on the Echo road and down Hinton fork to Heppner.

Yakima Signal: In railroad building the cost almost invariably exceeds the estimates, but this paper has it from the best of authority that the road from Ellensburg to Eagle gorge, including the switchback, cost much less than the estimates, and the only division of this work which did not come under the estimates was the one from Ellensburg to Cle-Elum. This speaks well for the construction engineers.

During the week trains have been running very irregular, or not at all, owing to washouts, says a Yakima exchange. Until Thursday travel between this point and Ellensburg was abandoned. There was no down or up train Wednesday, but through connection was gained on the following day. The principal impediments to the running of trains were below Union gap and between Ellensburg and the third crossing of the Yakima.

The following brief description of the route of the California & Oregon railroad between the Klamath river and Ashland, prepared for the Sacramento Record-Union, will be of interest: From Hornbrook to Cole's, in the Cottonwood valley, the distance by stage is only nine miles; by rail it will be almost sixteen. Near Bailey hill there is an exceedingly deep, though narrow, canyon, the approaches to which have made necessary an extraordinary large cut. This canyon is crossed by a trestle bridge, the abutments to which are the most extensive of their kind ever built in America. From Cole's the line follows the Cottonwood creek through the Siskiyou canyon to Upper Cole's, to which point it is graded. An immense sweep takes the line to the other side of the valley, up the hill to the large tunnel, and on this section of the road the graders are now at work. There are fully 3000 workmen distributed through the various camps.

An immense gang is now at work excavating a hill close to the entrance of the big tunnel, where a gigantic blast was exploded a few days ago. Three immense holes were dug in the center of the ridge, into which 1000 pounds of giant powder was placed. The concussion which followed was tremendous, the report being like a thunderclap. The big tunnel is now very near completed, but another large one remains to be commenced. From the summit to Ashland by stage road is some fourteen miles, but so steep is the grade that the track, when completed, will be twenty-six miles in length, making two enormous loops, in order to secure a uniform grade.

JAIL DELIVERY.

MURDERER ARMSTRONG AND TRAIN-WRECKER WEIMAN ESCAPE FROM THE COUNTY JAIL AT HAILEY.

Wood River Times, June 1.

Frank Armstrong and Louis Weiman escaped from the county jail last night. How they got out is a mystery, opinion being divided on the subject. Some believe that there was collusion with some one about the jail, while others are firmly convinced that they must have crawled through one of the narrow windows of the jail, and that the southeast corner window which lights the water-closet. Two of the inside bars of this window—made of inch gas-pipe — were removed; and the outside bar—made of inch wrought iron—was also removed. This was evidently sawed from each side for about one-third its thickness, and the bar then pried off with a crowbar. The window is made of "rock-faced" stone, and varies in width from about five inches to seven. It seems impossible that a man of Armstrong's build could have crawled through such a small opening; but Weiman is a slim individual and could crawl through easily.

The escape was not known until 7 o'clock this morning, when Deputy Sheriff Howard Gray made his usual morning round and opened the cells. Armstrong's cell was locked, but Weiman's was not, although the door was closed and it had every appearance of being bolted as usual.

Armstrong was convicted, at the last term of the district court in this city, of the murder of Paul Kimbert, the sheepman, and sentenced to be hanged last winter, but the supreme court having granted him a new trial, he was to have been retried to-morrow. Although but 21 years old, he is a hardened villain, and his crime was, judging from the evidence at the trial, one of the most cold-blooded and deliberate murders ever committed.

Louis Weiman was awaiting trial on a charge of train-wrecking near Glenn's ferry about ten days ago, the punishment for which offense is from one to five years in the territorial penitentiary. He is a machinist and blacksmith by trade, but apparently an experienced crook.

No reward has been offered yet for the escaped prisoners. At latest accounts both were still at large.

JACKSONVILLE BRANCH RAILROAD.

Jacksonville Times, June 3.

Articles incorporating the Jacksonville Branch Railroad Company were filed in the county clerk's office last Tuesday, and in the evening a meeting was held at the town hall for the purpose of receiving subscriptions to the capital stock, which has been placed at $30,000. There was a generous response from all present, especially from those not blessed with a large amount of worldly goods. Next day a committee waited on many who had previously agreed to take certain amounts of stock, and in some cases were surprised to find that men whose word was supposed to be as good as their bond, upon one curious pretext or another, refused to make good what they had on a former occasion expressed in "black and white."

By dint of much perseverance and work the gentlemen to whom had been intrusted the labor of soliciting subscriptions had presumably secured almost a sufficient amount to build the proposed branch road; but now that so many of those who placed large sums opposite their names have to all appearance crawfished, the fate of this noble scheme is uncertain; in fact, the chances are against the consummation. It is humiliating to acknowledge that a community so wealthy as ours, and whose prosperity in a great measure depends upon something like the branch railroad, should dissipate its golden opportunity simply through penuriousness and lack of enterprise.

Is it possible that the mossbacks are in the ascendancy and Jacksonville is doomed to decadence? Probably those most responsible for any failure to secure railroad connection with the outside world will have occasion to regret their unseemly action more than anybody else.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Goldendale Sentinel.

It will be remembered that during the month of October, 1884, Indian Peter and other reservation policemen, armed with instructions from Gen. Milroy came over to Tumwater and arrested some Indians who were accused of unlawfully putting traps in the Columbia in violation of a treaty. Several Indians were arrested and taken to Simcoe and fined, and among the number was one who had taken up land, severed his tribal relations and become alle same Boston man, and was therefore out from under the jurisdiction of the Indian law. He immediately commenced suit against Peter and the other policemen in the district court of this county claiming damages for false imprisonment in the sum of $500, and got judgment by default, and also $122 20 accruing costs.

The matter went along then from that time until last Saturday, and most of our citizens had forgotten all about it; but the Indian was evidently watching for his man, as on that day Sheriff VanVactor was seen to leave town, and Sunday morning returned in charge of a wagon, four horses and a load of merchandise that Peter was taking to his store on the reservation. These goods will no doubt be sold to satisfy said judgment, but the department should make the loss good to Peter for he is an exceptionally good Indian and was working under orders from the department.

SWOLLEN RIVERS.

Yakima Republic, June 2.

The Yakima, Natchez and other mountain source rivers have reached a flow beyond that remembered by the oldest settler, the result of the great body of snow in the mountains now discharging itself in melted form. In some localities the valleys are overflown, portions of farms submerged and crops imperilled thereby. Bridges are subjected to the utmost strain; in some instances swept away and partially wrecked; in others they stand trembling before the whirling torrent and flood wood caught up in its violent course. The Nelson bridge over the Natchez is unused, the approaches having been washed out; the railroad bridge over the mouth of the same river, near the upper mountain gap, has been watched with apprehensive anxiety, as has also the wagon bridge over the Yakima below Old Town by the county commissioners and citizens, L. H. Adkins having employed men to fish the drift under and thus protect it from danger.

There have been several washouts of the railroad track, one below old Yakima, and several slight ones up the road along the Yakima river, including one some seven miles south of Ellensburg, the former of which delayed trains here for two days, and the latter, and the latter, a washout of a small bridge, subjected the company to a transfer of passengers, mails and express.

MADE HIS ESCAPE.

Yakima Signal, June 2.

Byron Chisholm, a U. S. prisoner committed to the Yakima county jail, charged with counterfeiting, made his escape Wednesday morning. Deputy Sheriff Wiley had the prisoner out working on the courthouse grounds and had temporarily left him to attend to some party requesting his presence in the courthouse. Chisholm finding himself to be at liberty and seeing a saddle-horse at the hitching block jumped on to the animal and took off towards the river bottom. Near the slaughter-house he left the horse and entered the brush, since which time he has not been seen, although Sheriff Lesh and a large force of men have been vigorously searching for him. The supposition is that Chisholm made the crossing of the Natchez railroad bridge and into Kittitas county, where he has two brothers living. The escape is a very unfortunate one, but will serve a good lesson in making the county officials more careful in keeping a sharp lookout after their prisoners. Chisholm is about twenty-four years of age, of pale complexion and wears a light boyish moustache. When he escaped he had on a blue shirt, a small, round, felt hat, dark pants, and was without coat.

STILL A MYSTERY.

Arlington Times.

Tuesday, Guy Harshman who had been apprehended for the murder of Thomas Galphenee, was arraigned in the justice's court of this precinct before Justice Ebi. All the witnesses who were supposed to have any knowledge of the affair were examined, but absolutely no evidence was obtained by which the accused could be held, and he was discharged on motion of J. Q. Adams, who, by appointment, acted as district attorney in prosecuting the matter. Although many have not changed their ideas of the case, Harshman exhibited no fear, and his actions impressed one that he was innocent.

A horrible murder has been committed, evidently for revenge. In an effort to obtain some light upon the subject, the editor, in company with the deputy sheriff, spent a day in riding over the hills, carefully examining into the case and questioning all parties interested and disinterested. And our article of last week expressed the ideas of all who were familiar with the circumstances whether correct or not. In a case of this kind, all the light obtainable should be thrown upon it if we wish to get at the bottom of it.

GRAPE LAND WANTED.

Jacksonville Sentinel.

Emil Pfoff, of Bavaria, was in town this week looking at the grape land of our county. He wished to purchase 10,000 acres on which to plant a colony of his countrymen, who are soon to arrive. He gave the hillsides in the vicinity of Jacksonville a careful inspection and pronounced them the best land for grapes he has ever seen. The vines, too, he said, are remarkably vigorous and present every prospect of a bountiful yield of grapes. The fact that no fertilizers are used here in the production of grapes surprised him. In his opinion the wines made here are superior to those of his own country, and would sell there at $2 a bottle. He was deterred from purchasing the land desired through fear of the adoption of the prohibition amendment. The adoption of the prohibition amendment would be very detrimental to the interests of Jackson county.

KILLED A "RATTLER."

Ashland Tidings.

Saturday evening, as Mrs. H. F. Barron, Mrs. G. S. Butler and Mrs. E. B. Barron were returning home in a buggy from a visit at Soda Springs they saw an immense rattlesnake in the road near the top of the Songer hill. The two younger ladies wanted his scalp—rattles, that is, and dismounted from the buggy. There were plenty of large stones lying about, but they were afraid of crippling one another or killing the horses if they went to "throwing rocks," so they tore down a panel of worm fence to get a rail small enough for a club. Then they drove the snake under the fence, climbed upon the fence themselves and accidently hit the snake on the back, crippling it so that it couldn't get away. Then they shut their eyes and killed it "dead." They carried home eleven rattlers "and a button" to prove their story.

FATALLY INJURED.

Several days ago a son of Adam Berg, of Medford, aged about 14 years, met with an accident which resulted fatally. He was in the act of leading a colt near I. J. Phipps's barn, when it suddenly took fright and started to run. Young Berg unfortunately held tightly to the rope, and in the race he fell and was dragged a short distance. He picked himself up, and to all appearances was uninjured. Not long afterward he laid down on a lounge, and never rose again. The horse had either kicked him in the abdomen or he had been hurt internally in being dragged. Young Berg was a boy of much promise, possessed of industry and good habits, and his untimely death is deeply regretted. He leaves an aged father and also other relatives to mourn his loss.

INSPECTING SHEEP.

Fossil Journal.

J. W. Blake, Gilliam county's efficient stock inspector, has about completed his first semi-annual tour of inspection. Out of about eighty bands examined up to Monday last, he had found fourteen bands infected with scab. This is much less than in Crook or Wasco counties. It is reported that the inspector of Crook county, when he had examined about sixty bands, had only found about ten bands free of disease. The total number of sheep inspected by Mr. Blake was 124,000, not counting lambs, and the whole number in Gilliam county, not counting lambs, is estimated at 135,000.

BLUE MOUNTAIN UNIVERSITY.

La Grande Gazette.

The annual meeting of the trustees of the university was held Tuesday. It was expected that at this meeting there would be some action taken looking toward the turning over of the institution to the management of the Presbyterians, based, or rather conditioned, on the proposition that the institution be endowed with a sufficient fund to insure the maintenance of a school therein in the future. But this arrangement was forestalled by the strong denominational feeling which exists among the members of the present board, and in all probability a new board favorable to this proposition will not be had for the present at least. There is a very ardent desire among the people to see the institution put to the use for which it was intended, regardless of what particular denomination assumes control, but of course this cannot be done until a considerable majority of the founders and builders of the institution take a similar view of the situation.

THE GOLD HILL QUARTZ MINES.

GOLD HILL, June 2.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Knowing you are always willing to place any matter before your readers that has a tendency to promote any interest for the benefit of Oregon, I shall in a brief and plain way give you a few items regarding the mining outlook of this place, confining myself to quartz. First I will ask your readers to follow me to the mill owned and operated by C. W. Cornelius. The mill is situated about a mile and a half south of Gold Hill station, in Jackson county. It consists of ten stamps of 900 pounds weight each. They have a drop of about six inches, and drop ninety-six times per minute. One of the batteries is of Oregon, the other of California manufacture. The mill is driven by an engine built by Smith Bros. & Watson, of your city, and is under the management of W. L. McClure, from Nevada City, Cal., an amalgamator of experience. The mill is paying finely under his process. The motive power is under the supervision of a Mr. Lewis, who was formerly of Portland, an engineer of several years' experience. Mr. Cornelius is acting superintendent. The mill employs six hands, runs night and day, never stops, and the plates average about $100 per day, besides what remains in the mortars. There is a fine showing here for some of the moneyed men of Portland to secure a good location at this place. All Gold Hill needs is lively, energetic mining capital; she can produce the ore.

I will now describe the three ledges that are adjacent to this mill and worked by it. First, we will notice the north and south, a lead of two feet in width with slate walls and well defined. It is one of the best ledges of this locality. Gold is plainly seen by the naked eyes in almost any of the rock. Next we will look at the east and west, which is now being worked. There are employed in this mine six practical miners, Wm. Swinden being foreman of the gang. They are making an output of about forty tons per day. This rock is decomposed free milling ore, and pays a handsome profit. Last we will consider the Knott lead, owned jointly by Swinden and Cornelius. This is the bonanza of Jackson county. There is ore in this lead that will mill $500 per ton, with a strong indication of becoming impregnated with silver when the water level is reached.

The next locality we will visit is known as the Granite Hills in the celebrated Blackwell district, where there are three locations of well-defined ledges. First is the Little Giant, owned by W. L. McClure. There is a fifty-foot tunnel on this lead, showing up a fine body of ore with a well-defined lead of three feet in thickness. This is one of the boss strikes of the past winter. The Blue Lead, owned by T. J. Lawrence, is a large, well-defined lode, bearing considerable sulphurets. Mr. Lawrence is now engaged running an extensive tunnel upon it. L.

Mrs. Logan.

Washington Cor. New York Herald.

Senator Logan's widow, who still lingers at her suburban home, Calumet place, just outside the city, has never rallied from the shock and grief caused by her husband's death, and her friends think she will never be herself again until he is finally interred. She now makes frequent pilgrimages to look at him in his coffin in the vault belonging to the widow of Mr. Hutchinson of this city, at Rock Creek cemetery, and says that since his face still looks natural as she sees it beneath the glass of his coffin that these visits are her greatest comfort. But her friends naturally think that this keeps her grief still fresh, and prevents her turning her mind to anything more cheering. His body is to be taken, at some time, to Chicago for burial, but the date is not yet fixed.

COMMERCIAL.

MONDAY, June 6.

Overland receipts include 250 rls barbed wire, 13 sks coffee, car road carts, 135 sks seed, car iron pipe, car buggies, car iron pipe, car implements, 13 cs dates, 4 cs figs, 28 cs soap, 10 cs candy, 10 cs goods, 3 cs cigars, 2 cs cigarettes, 4 bls cordage, 4 cs hosiery, 105 cs boots and shoes. Weather cool and cloudy. Rain fell here Saturday afternoon and to-day at times. Walla Walla, La Grande, Union and points along the Columbia report rains last night. The rivers continue to fall. California produce by steamer was mostly moved early forenoon. Prices realized show no material change from those quoted last week. Str Columbia reached San Francisco at 5 A. M. to-day, having 1700 sacks wool in addition to cargo previously reported. Str Eastern Oregon reached San Francisco 2d from Yaquina bay with 7200 sks wheat, 205 sks oats, 2 sks seed, 16 bdls hides, 10 bdls pelts, 181 pkgs dried fruit, 25 pkgs skins, 12 sks bones, 10 horses, and $322 treasure.

A few changes in the merchandise market are to be reported. Beans are improving, butter and eggs whites being quoted up to 2½c. Raisins are $3 per whole box. Arbuckle's roasted coffee is quoted 27½c. All grades of coffee continue firm.

Boston dates for week ended May 27 report a much improved inquiry for domestic wool, manufacturers manifesting more interest. The increase in sales, however, were confined to one or two grades, some of the largest dealers reporting trade as unsatisfactory. More money had been obtained for medium wools, owing to their scarcity, but the fine wools were as dull as ever, and movable only at prices below those ruling in the West. The market closed uncertain and unsettled, showing improvement only in medium. An auction sale of heavy-weight goods held in New York resulted satisfactorily and better prices were obtained than expected. All the fancy cassimeres were quickly taken, mainly by city cloth jobbers and clothiers. The Western wool markets were strong. Texas reported large sales, including 20@22c for medium, and toward the close of the week the markets were active. Kentucky markets were firm with very little offered under 29c, sales of one-quarter to three-eighths blood being quite free at 28c. Combing wools in St. Louis sold at 27c and clothing at 27½c for eastern account. In Ohio and Michigan blankets were moving freely, and some few unwashed lots had been sold. Eastern Oregon wool at Boston is in moderate request at 17@19c for fair to good. To bring over 20@21c lots in exceptional condition and of light shrinkage were necessary.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 48 hours include 1240 ctls wheat, 414 bbls flour, 942 ctls oats, 368 ctls barley, 184 ctls millstuff, 191 sks flaxseed, 19,540 lbs wool, 8 cs butter, 58 cs eggs, 50 bxs dried fruit, 14 sks.

WHEAT—Advices are of quiet tenor from abroad. Chicago had no call session to-day. San Francisco options are apparently less firm. Our market rules inactive. Receipts are mostly from the Eastern section.

OATS—A somewhat weaker feeling is manifest. Prices are easier and the local market is less firm than it was.

EGGS—Receipts liberal but closely sold up, and the market is firm at 16c.

WOOL—Receipts large. Some is coming in from valley points. The market is quiet, but holders are firm and have lost none of their advantage.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The new week on the stock exchange opened with a quiet and rather dull market, in which half a dozen stocks completely monopolized the interest, and two of these made the temper of speculation at different periods of the day. The announcement of the proposed extra issue of stock by the St. Paul Company, coming, as it did, after the unfavorable bank statement of Saturday, created a marked depression in granger stocks, in which the general list sympathized to a limited extent. Later in the day there was a sudden spurt in Western Union, based on widespread rumors that a dividend would be shortly declared on the stock. On this stimulus a better feeling became noticeable throughout the entire list. There was extensive cornering of shorts in Pacific Mail throughout the afternoon, and that stock materially advanced. The improvement in the market was also aided late in the day by the reduction in rates of sterling exchange. The remainder of the list was quiet and without feature, fluctuations being extremely narrow except in a few specialties. Final quotations show irregular changes. Western Union is up 1¾, Tennessee Coal & Iron down 1½, St. Paul 1¼, and Jersey Central 1. Governments were dull and steady.

PROHIBITION AND ITS ANALOGUES.

PORTLAND, June 6.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

THE OREGONIAN, with its usual fairness, brings its strongest point to the front. It is evidently in no sympathy with liquor drinking or selling. As a business company, it sees positive and continual danger and damage from the habit and the traffic. It counts the whole whisky business an enemy to society, a menace to its welfare and to its true life. Yet it sees no sure way of relief. It would remove the monster evil by its own hand were this possible. It despairs of popular sentiment and power to abate the nuisance and escape its perils.

On May 31 THE OREGONIAN said: "A provision carried into a constitution over strong opposition, to meet an emergency or to serve a special purpose, almost surely fails. For the very fact that a constitutional amendment is proposed as a remedy for a special evil, real or supposed, implies that there is a vast body of opinion and interest hostile to the object which the amendment is designed to secure, which body of opinion and interest it is proposed to coerce and overcome by the amendment to the organic law. An amendment put into a constitution in such a manner becomes a dead letter."

Grant that this supposed analogue of prohibition is true, the first simple answer would be that the majorities, who put this amendment into the constitution, would have the zeal and the power to enforce it by statutes. The second answer would be that the motive which carried the amendment would remain with cumulating force to make it effective by law and police.

But THE OREGONIAN cites the failure of the fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, as a means of prohibiting the disfranchisement of the colored men of the United States, and of securing to them beyond question the right and privilege of voting.

"This article has been for eighteen years systematically set at naught in those states, whose opposition to equal suffrage caused it to be enacted. Congress, moreover, is empowered by the article to enforce its provisions by appropriate legislation. But does congress show the slightest disposition to do or even attempt anything of the kind? The people of the United States have for many years acquiesced, and they still acquiesce in the nullification of this amendment," since they see no means of enforcing it.

Admit this analogue of prohibition to be true, in a degree, in some states, was it wise or unwise for congress to secure its place in the constitution?

First—The majority of the American people have said that the amendment is the logical necessity of the abolition of slavery. The slave set free must have the protection of the bullet or the ballot.

Second—This amendment has educated the freedman, in respect to his rights, with great rapidity.

Third—It has educated his former master to respect the freedman's rights more than any acts of congress since his emancipation.

Fourth—Some Southern states grant and protect them in his rights of suffrage. All the Southern states do this in part if he votes with the ruling party.

Fifth—Suffrage is the goal which he will soon reach under the ægis of the 15th amendment, the prohibitions of the old "fire eaters" to the contrary notwithstanding.

Sixth—Constitutions based on human rights educate a constituency who enforce them. The "Bill of Rights" was in advance of the people, but it brought them up abreast of its provisions. The constitution of the United States was with great difficulty ratified by the states, because the people with all their burning patriotism, hardly dared to hope for its enforcement, but it soon revealed its power and cemented the Union.

Calhoun's nullification tested its inherent force under Jackson, whose vigor of action, with Webster's vigor of argument, clinched its bands of steel for twenty years. The first shot on Sumter in 1861 wrenched it with all the horrors of civil war, but it stood the shock and nailed its banner of liberty upon the nation's capitol, under whose folds every slave walked a freedman. Statutes may be temporary. Constitutions built upon righteousness are eternal. Some freedmen vote in all the states. All will ere long vote in every state if they choose and as they choose.

Such constitutions are protective of rights and prohibitory of wrongs, their force inheres in their principles. No man or body of men can annul or withstand the principle that society has the right and duty to protect itself from the wrong doing of any who claim its protection for themselves and their families. For example, the saloon not only tempts drunkards so long as they have money to buy whisky and gratify their appetites, but it tempts the sober by every art to drink and become a drunkard. This is its practice, its record and its history. It wants new victims and sets its snares early and late to entrap them. A liquor seller said to me: "You ministers know little of our business." "Why?" I asked. He replied, "We are not only hired to sell liquor to common drinkers but we stay up till 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning to catch all we can. We must get new customers. We must invite strangers in to drink—drink a glass of soda if they will not take wine or brandy. We invite young men in to sit by the fire and read the papers. We watch them and treat them civilly, and at last they are ashamed to enjoy our light and fire without pay. They begin to buy a cigar, or soda, or light wine, and soon we have them regularly. The wholesalers force us to do this. They turn us off and get other bartenders if we do not win new recruits." I asked how he would like to have a saloon keeper entice his son in to drink? He replied with indignation: "If any man entices my son into a saloon to drink I will punish him." This is the law of self-protection and family protection, that once aroused against enticers and destroyers, no man can allay until the wrong ceases.

These prohibitions of wrong are mighty educators, especially among a free, self-governing people.

Hon. John Bright has been an able statesman, but he misses the mark when he assumes that a temperance sentiment can not rise to the dignity of protecting one's home and household from the drink curse.

The word coerce implies arbitrary dictation. The word protection is nature's first law. It is the axiom of social life. You protect society from the opium fiend, from the burglar and the murderer. You stop slander. You abate a nuisance. Why not stop the man who sells poison to your son or husband? Why not close the shop that breeds theft and murder?

Prohibition does not go backward.

Vermont, Maine, Kansas, Iowa, Rhode Island, Georgia are in line of steady, onward movement. They will not retreat.

G. H. ATKINSON.

The Great City of London.

Frank R. Stockton in St. Nicholas.

If any one were to walk one way through all the streets of London, he would be obliged to go a distance of two thousand six hundred miles, or as far as it is across the American continent from New York to San Francisco. This will give an idea of what would have to be done in order to see even the greater part of London.

In our approach to this city, as well as in our rambles through its streets, we shall not be struck so much by its splendid and imposing appearance as by its immensity. Go where we may, there seems to be no end to the town. It is fourteen miles one way and eight miles the other, and contains a population of nearly four million people, which is greater, indeed, than that of Switzerland or the kingdoms of Denmark and Greece combined. We are told on good authority that there are more Scotchmen in London than in Edinburgh, more Irishmen than in Dublin, and more Jews than in Palestine, with foreigners from all parts of the world, including a great number of Americans. Yet there are so many Englishmen in London that one is not likely to notice the presence of these people of other nations.

This vast body of citizens, some so rich that they never can count their money, and some so poor that they never have any to count, eat every year 400,000 oxen, 1,500,000 sheep, 8,000,000 chickens and game birds, not to speak of calves, hogs and different kinds of fish. They consume 500,000,000 oysters, which, although it seems like a large number, would only give, if equally divided among all the people, one oyster every third day to each person. There are 300,000 servants in London, enough people to make a large city; but as this gives only one servant to each dozen citizens, it is quite evident that a great many of the people must wait on themselves. Things are very unequally divided in London; and I have no doubt that instead of there being one servant to twelve persons, some of the rich lords and ladies have twelve servants apiece.

Family Troubles
—ASK FOR—
ROUGH ON RATS.

The supper was laid on the table trim
When out comes, roaring, my young son, Jim,
"Oh! daddy, the rats! A dozen or two,
Are gobbling the supper, and baby too."
My wife, with a scream, seized iron and broom,
I clutched a bottle, and made for the room.
Never was heard such a hullabaloo!
It woke up the cat, and the terrier, too.
The terrier thought we were hunting the cat,
Got a grip of her tail, as she went for the rat.
Jim, with his hatchet, tumbled over a pail,
And tried to hold terrier back by the tail.
I caught Jim by the wool, but rather too late—
The table received such a bump from his pate
That teapot, plates, lamp, chairs, baby and all,
Were upset on the floor, 'mid crash and squall.
The people about shouted "Murder! Fire!"
And the police rushed in the cause to inquire
They'd listen to nothing, we wanted to state,
But to the next station lugged me off straight
Swore I was drunk—nearly murdered my wife,
And of my poor infant endangered the life,
Broke tables, chairs, and the crockery ware;
When the Justice said, what a savage old bear,
Not heeding a word my poor wife did swear,
Imprisoned and fined, I cursed my sad fate,
When lately I learned, but rather too late,
Instead of dangerous cat traps, dogs or cats,
My only protection was "ROUGH ON RATS."

S. S. S. CURES Cancer, Scrofula, Eczema, Blood Poison Malaria, Ulcers, And all Diseases Caused From Impure Blood

Cancer of the Tongue.

My wife, some three or four years ago, was troubled with an ulcer on the side of her tongue near the throat. The pain was incessant, causing loss of sleep and producing great nervous prostration. Accompanying this trouble was rheumatism. It had passed from the shoulders and centered in the wrist of one hand, she almost losing the use of it. Between the suffering of the two, life had grown burdensome. By the use of a half dozen small-sized bottles of Swift's Specific, she was entirely relieved and restored to health. This was three years ago, and there has been no return of the disease.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

LARGE LUMBER TRAFFIC.—From a gentleman who has just arrived here from a short visit to Gray's harbor and Shoalwater bay, it is learned that the lumber trade around these coast points is very lively now. At Hoquiam, Aberdeen and Cosmopolis the mills are moving briskly, and the prospects hopeful and encouraging. All the sawmills are busily running and cutting great quantities of lumber. One of the several large sawmills is very soon to have the capacity increased, when the lumber output will be augmented at least one-third. Most of this lumber finds a ready market in San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and other points in California. Several sailing vessels are now engaged in the lumber traffic, plying between Shoalwater bay, Gray's harbor and ports down the coast. Capt Simpson, who is so largely interested in the milling business, and who owns several vessels, is having another craft built at Hoquiam. It will be a large schooner, 160 feet long and having 40 feet beam. Already the keel has been laid, and about one-third of the frame is up. When completed the new vessel will be used in the lumber business.

THE BARK COLOMA.—About 6 o'clock yesterday morning the American bark Coloma arrived here from Astoria, and now lies moored at Flanders' wharf just above the foot of C street. The vessel brings a larger cargo of Chinese merchandise to this port than she has ever carried before. Discharging will not be commenced for a few days yet. Fifty three days were required to complete the voyage from the flowery land to Astoria. Mrs E B Knapp sent back by the vessel a genuine Chinese pug dog, with the beautiful expression of countenance so often seen depicted on tea chests and an odd looking bird, called a gin sing lark, which sings beautifully but of course in the Chinese language. There were over thirty Chinese passengers on the Coloma, all of whom had return certificates except [illegible], who left here before such things were in vogue, and the wife of Wing Mow Lung, who had torn herself away from the Celestial kingdom to abide with her husband here. [illegible] these succeeded in "getting through the custom house" all right.

NEW OIL SUBSTITUTED.—A short time since the fact was mentioned that the United States lighthouse board had concluded to substitute mineral oil for lard oil at all the first-order light stations in the [illegible], owing to its being much cheaper, and at the same time just as good. About two weeks ago coal oil was introduced at Cape Disappointment and has been found to afford an excellent light. In respect to brilliancy the mineral is scarcely inferior to the other oil which has so long been used. New lamps had to be substituted but the difference in the expense is such that the outlay is but trifling. It is claimed that coal oil is much cleaner to handle and that the lamps keep in good order with much less trouble, and for that reason is greatly preferred by the keepers. Tillamook is also a first order light, and mineral oil is to be used here. As yet the change has not been made, but a new lamp will be placed in the tower probably in the course of a week—just as soon as all necessary arrangements are concluded.

ASK LEGAL AUTHORITY TO FINISH RAILROAD.—The O & C R R Co yesterday filed a petition with Judge Deady asking that the injunction granted against the company in January, 1885, when a receiver was appointed, to prevent it from in any way disposing of or encumbering its property, be modified so as to allow the company to enter into a construction agreement with the Pacific Improvement Company, of California, for the construction and equipment of the uncompleted portion of its line from Ashland to the state line, and for laying down steel rails on the completed portion of its line where iron rails are now in use. The road from Albany to Roseburg, a distance of 116 miles, is covered by iron rails, which are badly worn, and their replacement by steel rails will be a great improvement. The O & C R R Co is to pay the Pacific Improvement Company $100 000 of its bonds for each mile of road constructed and equipped and $5000 for each mile of steel rails laid.

AUTHORIZED TO MAKE REPAIRS.—The case of Gest vs Packwood came up in the U S circuit court yesterday on a petition of the receiver for permission to borrow $2000 to repair the Eldorado ditch in Baker county. This ditch, which is over 100 miles long, was mortgaged many years ago, and has been in litigation for some time. A receiver was appointed not long since, and he desires to make some necessary repairs. The ditch used to deliver 250 inches of water, but owing to decay of flumes by which the water is carried across gulches a great deal of the water is wasted. The receiver thinks if repairs are made the receipts from the ditch can be raised to $[illegible]000. The court ordered that the petition of the receiver be granted, and that the $2000 borrowed be made a first lien on the ditch.

THE SOUTHERN ROAD TO THE PARK.—As yet the contractor has not commenced work on the south line of the city park to grade a roadway from the summit of the hill down to Jefferson street. M S Hart being the lowest responsible bidder was awarded the contract by the committee on streets, which action was subsequently ratified by the common council. Soon after Hart filed his bonds, which were duly approved. Ninety days were allowed from the signing of the contract before it was required that operations should commence. According to this stipulation the contractor has some time yet. Hart is at present engaged on a contract near the summit on the west side, but expects very soon to complete it. Work on the park road will probably commence in a week or two.

MINING INCORPORATIONS.—Articles of incorporation of the Monitor Mining Company were filed yesterday in the office of the county clerk by E J Jeffery, Byron Z Holmes and H Y Thompson. Objects, to mine for gold and silver, erect smelting works etc. Principal office, Portland. Capital stock $500 000 divided into 500 000 shares. Articles of incorporation were also filed of the Hecla Mining Company. Objects to mine in Oregon, Idaho and Washington territory. Principal office Portland. Capital stock $[illegible] divided into 500 000 shares of the value of $1 each. Principal incorporators, W R Sewall, Wm A Daly and W Showers.

THE DIVORCE MILL.—Rebecca Kelly was yesterday granted a divorce from John Kelly by Judge Stearns on the ground of desertion. They were married in the year 1861 in Williams[illegible] N Y and have one minor child, F S Kelly, aged 15 years. Defendant deserted plaintiff [illegible]. The suits of Amanda Gates vs W W Gates, and that of Lavina Selby vs William Selby, have been referred to W S Newbury as referee. [illegible] C T Gladding vs Ida Gladding has been dismissed by mutual consent. [illegible] has been granted a divorce from [illegible] Stearns on the ground of ill treatment.

[illegible] James Chenoweth, of [illegible] county, is in the city. He says the [illegible] through the valley are [illegible]. Unless something [illegible] occurs, the finest crop ever harvested in the Umpqua and Willamette [illegible]. The same can be said for the Inland Empire. Mr Chenoweth says good beef cattle are rather scarce up the valley, owing to the [illegible] season, but young cattle are very plentiful. The entire absence of any demand from Montana has left a great many young cattle on the hands of owners for which there is no sale.

INDICTMENT AGAINST DIXON FILED.—The indictment against Clarence Pratt Dixon, of Virginia, formerly agent of the Canadian Pacific railroad in Portland, was filed in the state circuit court yesterday. It charges Dixon with embezzling $[illegible]. Unless something intervenes to prevent it he will be called upon to plead to-day. Dixon occupies one of the front cells in the jail, the [illegible] windows of which face on Main street. All things considered his quarters are not unpleasant, being sunny, [illegible] and airy. [illegible] hardened rascals usually occupy [illegible].

[illegible] the first [illegible] morning [illegible] R [illegible] The [illegible] of [illegible] inches [illegible] The [illegible] hours [illegible] market [illegible] fall in June [illegible] as in the worst [illegible].

VISIT FROM GRAND OFFICERS.—Grand Chancellor Jay Tuttle is in the city visiting the different lodges of Knights of Pythias. Last evening he visited Ivanhoe in company with other grand lodge officers. The hall was well filled with members and visitors. This evening Castle Lodge will be visited, and to-morrow evening Excelsior. Visits to other city lodges will probably be made next week. The [illegible] bring out members of the order and awaken interest.

DISCOURSE BY AN EMINENT MAN.—Rev C H Fowler, the bishop of the Methodist church, whose residence is in San Francisco, will arrive in Portland to-day and will preach to-night at 8 o'clock at the Tabernacle. As a profound thinker and fine orator Bishop Fowler ranks high among the divines of the country, and the tabernacle will doubtless be crowded to listen to his discourse.

G COMPANY'S EXCURSION.—In spite of the threatening weather last night about 600 people availed themselves of the invitations extended by Company G for their excursion. The magnificent steamer Alaskan lay at the Ash street dock to receive the party, and at about 8 o'clock lines were cast off and she started down the river, turned into the Columbia and steamed up to Rooster Rock, turned around and landed her guests at Ash street dock once more, at 12 o'clock. The feature of the affair outside of the perfect arrangements, which reflect great credit on the committee, was the Dodworth band. The young men in their natty new uniforms played like veterans, and were loudly encored after each selection. The officers of the steamer, especially Purser Dillingham, did all in their power to assist in the entertainment of the guests, while Baum & Brandes furnished excellent refreshments. The entire saloon aft was canvased for dancing, and George Parsons, with his orchestra, furnished fine music.

COULD NOT PLAY EVEN.—Yesterday William Wallace was tried and acquitted in Justice Bushwiler's court of assault and battery on L. Elkin, a second hand dealer on Front street. Last Thursday Wallace went to Elkin's place to get an ice box, to which Elkin alleged Wallace had no title. A war of words ensued, resulting in Elkin's arrest in the police court on complaint of Wallace for abusive language. During his trial Elkin created as much amusement for the lobby as a genuine German comedian, but subsided on being fined $10. Yesterday Elkin attempted to be equally funny and soon straightened out his risible wrinkles on the court dismissing the case against Wallace.

UNTIL FRIDAY TO PAY WATER BILLS.—Water consumers should take note of the advertisement in to-day's paper to the effect that all water rates are payable in advance, and if not paid on the 10th of the month the water will be shut off from each delinquent. All collections at places of residence or business are abolished, and bills for water are payable at the office of the city water works only. A failure to pay at the office will not only entail trouble to the consumer by having the water shut off, but the expense of turning off and turning on the water.

CLAIMED SELF DEFENSE.—In the police court yesterday afternoon, J H Howard, a railroad man, was examined on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and defacing a building. The complaining witness was O Peterson, a saloon keeper on Fourth and B streets. On the first charge he was acquitted, and on the second he was fined $[illegible]. It was a case of too much beer. Howard claimed he drew a hatchet and broke open a door and assaulted Olsen with it because he had been assaulted by a gang of toughs and had to protect himself.

DEFACING A BUILDING.—John Walsh has been arrested in Justice Tuttle's court for defacing a building not his own, namely, that of his wife Bridget at Ninth and F streets. August Wodecker, a saloon keeper, makes the complaint. He avers that he rents a saloon and warehouse in Mrs Bridget Walsh's building, and that on account of a falling out with Walsh that individual tore down a shed he paid rent for and so barricaded the entrance to the back yard as to prevent his using it. The case comes up for trial to-day.

SPECIAL MEETING.—At a special meeting of the police commissioners yesterday the following special policemen were appointed for service on the Morrison-street bridge: H. O Chance, M Keith, Jacob Keith and Jas Comb. These parties are toll collectors on the bridge and are invested with police authority in order to control fast driving on the bridge. Messrs. A W Seers, J P Woodle and H Randall were appointed special policemen for the Seventh Day Adventists camp-meeting.

DAMAGED BY WATER.—The handsomely frescoed ceiling and the walls of Dekum's book store were thoroughly soaked during Sunday night and a lot of books damaged by water on account, as it is alleged, of some one leaving a faucet open in the city offices above. Mr Dekum will present a bill for damages to the common council. It would seem that if any of the occupants of these rooms through carelessness went off leaving the water running, the janitor should have discovered it.

FOR ALASKA.—Late Sunday evening Mr C A Swineford, superintendent of the Madison division of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, a brother of Gov Swineford of Alaska, and Dr C J Harrington and Mr M J Drown of Wisconsin, arrived here en route to Alaska to examine into mining property recently bought in their behalf. They left for Port Townsend yesterday morning and hope to catch the steamer Ancon.

RUN SLOW.—Masters of river steamers are requested to go under the slow bell while passing along the city front as far down as F street, and to keep as near the center of the channel as possible. While the river is falling, and will probably fall still further in the next few days, swells from steam craft do considerable damage to embankments on the east side, hence the request.

THE STAGE

BAIRD'S MINSTRELS.—Next Monday evening, June 1[illegible], I W Baird's Mammoth Minstrels begin a week's engagement at the New Market. [illegible] San Bernardino Times of recent date: [illegible] by the largest audience ever assembled in [illegible] opera house in San Bernardino collected last evening to witness the entertainment by Baird's minstrel company. Every inch of space was utilized with chairs, and the standing room was all taken long before the curtain went up. At least [illegible] people were turned away from the house. The entertainment was good, the jokes were all new and rich, and the singing was fine. Cool Burgess, in his original character, called forth much applause and was encored. Charles Goodyear was also fine in his "cyclone of funnyism." The bell ringers were much better than last season, and the entire performance gave general satisfaction.

FREDERICK WARDE AS "GALBA"

Enthusiastic Reception of the Tragedian, and Success of his New Play

The consciousness that he was well remembered must have been borne in upon Mr Warde's mind as, arrayed in the semi barbarous garb of a Roman slave, with skin of beast wrapped about his form, he strode upon the stage at the New Market theater last evening. The house fairly shook with round after round of applause, and it was several seconds before he could begin his lines. Flattering as must have been this reception to the distinguished tragedian, it was but the forerunner of the numerous outbursts that awaited him all through the play, a synopsis of which appeared in THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN.

As a play, "Galba, the Gladiator," is an exceedingly clever piece of dramatic construction. Though its central idea is an entirely original one, yet at times the play in speech and action is strongly suggestive both of "Spartacus" and "Virginius," with this difference, that Galba is the expression of tremulous physical force, dissociated from any intellectuality, and animated by two strong, controlling emotions—love for his child, and a desire for revenge upon the author of his miseries. These two ideas are well worked out by the playwright and clothed in a richness of language that strikes the ear melodiously.

As Galba, Mr Warde has added another brilliant success to his already long list of dramatic triumphs. The part affords almost boundless opportunity for the display of his robust powers. His virile, vigorous style fits admirably into the strong situations with which the play teems. In the scene in the catacombs, wherein he rehearses to his fellow slaves the story of his wrongs and calls down curses upon the author of his miseries, his very intensity of feeling and hurling maledictions cause one to shudder, so realistic do they seem. The great act of the play, however, is the fourth act, in the amphitheatre. It is here that Warde's powers show at their best. As he swaggers about, boasting of his former strength, and bidding them send on his antagonists, be they man or beast, he is the very personification of brute force. But when he recognizes in the innocent maiden, whom he is bidden to slay, the child for whom he has searched a lifetime, the scene is indescribable. All the pent up love seems to break forth in one glad cry as he clasps her in his arms and rains down kisses and caresses upon her upturned face. He is simply superb throughout the entire scene, and in the closing act, killing his child to keep his oath and destroy his enemy at the same time, he is equally strong. He was recalled after each act with deafening applause.

What a lovely picture was Miss Eugenie Blair as the fair Neodamia, daughter of Galba, and how sweetly did she portray that luckless maiden. She seemed the very embodiment of youthful innocence and religious enthusiasm and gave to the part a tenderness and maidenly simplicity that won her audience completely. In the temple scene she was especially fine, making a most striking picture as she avowed her faith in the very jaws of death.

Miss Margaret Pierce as Faustina did a very faithful and conscientious piece of work throughout. Her scene with Flavian in the temple of Juno was an exceedingly difficult one but she managed it remarkably well.

Mr Chas D Herman's Flavian was a manly impersonation throughout, and Mr L F Rand as the aged Christian priest Origen, was all that could be desired. He looked the patriarch and spoke his lines with the dignity that became them. The remainder of the cast was good. To-night Mr Warde in his great role of "Virginius, the Roman Father."

ONE'S OLD HAND ENGINE

THE PIONEER "MASHEEN" SOON TO BE RECEIVED BACK HERE FOR SAFE KEEPING

At the last meeting of the common council it will be remembered that a communication was received from the president of the Volunteer Firemen's Association in behalf of that organization, asking for the purchase of the old fire engine formerly belonging to Willamette Engine Company No 1. The prayer of the petitioners was granted, and, under the proper order of business, an ordinance was introduced by Councilmen Gerdes and passed under a suspension of the rules, which made an appropriation of $15[illegible] for the purchase of the engine.

The history of the old engine is an eventful one, and its career is intimately identified with the early organization and maintenance of the volunteer fire department of Portland. Away back, more than two decades ago, the hand engine in question was purchased by the city for Willamette Company No 1, and for many years rendered splendid service at scores of fires. Those were the days when the spirit of rivalry ran so high and fierce between No 1 and No 3, when "first water" at a fire was deemed of more significance than "first blood" at a prize "mill." How these two old volunteer companies used to race when the bells tapped an alarm, how the members strained every nerve to get to the fire first and send the water through the hose, what yells of triumph, and shouts of exultation were raised from the throats of the victorious boys.

Years later, the city purchased a large steam fire engine for No 1, and then the old hand engine, after going idle for a time in the corporation [illegible], was finally sold to the citizens of Baker City. For that municipality the old "masheen" has rendered valuable service on many occasions. And now Portland has purchased the engine back and will turn it over to the care of the Volunteer Fire Association as a relic of bygone days. The proposition made was that the engine should be delivered in Portland for the sum of $1[illegible]. On the coming Fourth of July the association proposes to turn out and parade with the engine which the city was generous enough to buy.

Columbian Engine Company No 3's old hand engine was also sold after the city purchased for that company a fine steam fire engine. Pendleton citizens bought her some years ago, and the old girl, as the boys were wont to designate the engine during the volunteer days, has since done valiant work in saving property. This engine, it is understood, the citizens of Pendleton are willing to sell at a very low figure, and it is now proposed to induce the city dads of Portland to open the municipal purse strings just a little bit, and to also purchase No 3's engine simply as a sort of "keepsake." These two hand engines are about all that has survived in memory of the departed days of the volunteers. Besides, the association includes in its membership those who ran with both Ones and Threes and it is but natural for these "ancient lads" to desire to have both "masheens." It is quite probable that No 3's will be purchased. They will be treasured up and preserved with great care by the association, and will contribute in no small degree in keeping alive the brave old spirit of fire brotherhood of the past.

BOUG'S FRAUDULENT DIVORCE.

A REPORT THAT HE HAS A NEW WIFE ON HAND—TROUBLE AHEAD

Yesterday morning in department No [illegible] circuit court, Alex Bernstein, counsel for defendant in the Boug divorce case, at request of the other side, asked that the hearing of Hans C Boug as to why the case should not be opened and defendant given an opportunity to make a defense, also, as to why he should not furnish her means to conduct the defense, be continued till Wednesday morning.

Boug, it is reported, has married another woman, in Vancouver, since he obtained the divorce, although the law provides that in case of a legal separation neither party may again wed within six months, and Boug's divorce is not [illegible]. Mrs Boug No 1 is staying at the County house, where it is said her husband has been visiting her with the view of a settlement, and that [illegible] cash and support for a year was offered but refused.

RELAYING BUOYS

Several days ago the inspector of this lighthouse district returned from an official inspection cruise on the Manzanita. During his absence the inspector visited Shoalwater bay and Gray's harbor to look personally after the buoyage at those points. Ten days were consumed in making the round trip. Owing to pressing official duties in other directions and bad weather the inspector had not visited either Shoalwater bay or Gray's harbor for some months, and consequently there was quite an urgent necessity to do so. Many of the buoys had drifted out of proper position in obedience to the combined force of storms and tides.

At Gray's harbor one of the bar buoys was gone altogether and the other carried some distance out of place. New first class iron ones were placed so as to definitely make the entrance. Several old buoys, which had become rusty and weather stained, were taken up and replaced by new and freshly-painted ones. At Shoalwater bay fifteen new buoys were placed in position, taking the place, in most instances, of old ones. All the old buoys taken up were brought on the tender to the depot near Astoria, where they are to be overhauled. The barnacles will be knocked and scraped off, the iron tested to see if it leaks, the holes closed, if there are any, and then treated to a shining new coat of paint. Although the sea was quite rough at times outside the trip proved very pleasant and enjoyable. Some of the buoys about the mouth of the Columbia are said to be fouled with barnacles and much wave-worn and ought to be replaced. Just as soon as the inspector has time he intends to remove several and substitute new ones. The lighthouse tender has been moored for several days near the foot of A street. Last evening she steamed away, Astoriaward.

RIVER AND HARBOR WORKS.

THE COLUMBIA RIVER JETTY. THE ROCK SUPPLY, THE SOUTHERN BAYS.

Capt Charles F Powell informed a reporter yesterday that operations would be commenced in a few days to improve the channel of the Chehalis river by the removal of logs, drift and wood obstructions. The snag boat will begin work near the head of navigation and gradually move down toward the mouth.

At the Cascades only a very small force of men are employed, probably less than a dozen all told. High water rendered a practical suspension of the work necessary some weeks ago and operations will not be resumed until after the general subsidence of the freshet. But very little work can be accomplished now and hence the force has been reduced to a mere shadow. Some time in August a large number of men will be employed again.

Both at Yaquina bay and the mouth of the Coquille work on the jetties is in progress. No active operations have been resumed yet at Coos bay.

At the mouth of the Columbia work on the wharf is being pushed forward lively by the contractors. The wharf is being constructed so as to enable boats and barges to come alongside and land rock and other material, which will be used in building the breakwater. About the first of July work on the jetty will be resumed. Several days ago the contract to furnish rock and piles was awarded the Portland Construction Company, but by stipulation the contractors are allowed twenty days in which to complete preliminaries, so that the actual delivery of material will not commence for a few weeks.

Rock of an excellent quality has been found on Tongue point, and the contractors are making active preparations to open and operate the quarry. Extensive quantities of stone can be obtained there. This will be much more convenient than to bring the stone from the quarry which was found some time ago near the foot of the mountains below the mouth of the Columbia. Before this rock could be available it would become necessary to build a railroad for some distance. From Tongue point the stone can be transported in boats the entire distance and dumped on the wharf which is now in process of construction. The contractors are now engaged in putting up a small wharf at Tongue point, so that boats can land and load with stone. On the jetty itself there will be no contract let; the work will be done by days' labor under the immediate supervision of the engineer in charge.

REMOVED TO HIGH GROUND

THE RESIDENTS OF SAUVIE'S ISLAND BETAKE THEMSELVES TO THE HILLS—HOGS DROWNED

Sauvie's island is now in a submerged condition, the greater portion of area being below the present high water mark. Most, if indeed not all, the inhabitants thereof have vacated their homes and taken to the more elevated grounds, where they can laugh defiance at the floods. Besides the inconvenience of temporarily moving their residences, the people on the island have had to take all their stock to the hills twelve miles back of St. Helens for safety and where abundant free pasturage can be found. Mr W H Musgrove has moved about 300 head, Mr Leonard 50, David Cloninger 150, Charles Ramsey 50, W Connell 300. Many other residents have gone over into Washington territory or on the hills opposite the island on the Oregon side.

Two men who attempted to carry a lot of hogs belonging to N Mackay across to the mainland had rather an unpleasant experience. They had two skiffs, in one of which they loaded a huge boar and sow, with their feet tied, of course, and in the other thirteen pigs, their feet also tied. In rowing across to the mainland the old sow was so riotous that she was tied to a thwart. Just before the shore was reached both boats upset. The big boar being helpless with his feet tied sank like a stone. The sow was prevented from sinking by being fastened to the boat, and was rescued in a very exhausted condition. The pigs floated around for a while and began to sink one at a time and only part of them were saved. The men had to pull three miles to get a chance to dry themselves, and as it was a cool day were half frozen.

A Tax of Eight Mills Levied for School Purposes.

Five Mills for Building and Three for Support—Great Liberality of Taxpayers—Young Criminals Held to Answer

The adjourned meeting of the annual school meeting was called to order by Mr J R N Sellwood.

The clerk read the usual notice of meeting, and also the minutes of the meeting held in January.

The chairman briefly stated the object of the meeting, giving reasons therefor, and read such portions of school laws as referred to the object of the meeting.

Mr Thomas Hislow then moved the adoption of the following

RESOLUTION

Resolved, That the directors of this school district No 21 are hereby authorized in the name and in behalf of the said school district to take the following action as specified in sections 1, 2 and 3 of this resolution.

Section 1—That there shall be a three (3) mill tax levied upon all the real and personal property in this district for the support and benefit of the schools thereof, also a five (5) mill tax levied upon all the real and personal property in this district for the purpose of completing the present school building in Stephens addition to East Portland and also for the purpose of buying a block of land in the northern part of the city for school purposes.

Sec 2 That the [illegible] block [illegible] completing the school building in Stephens addition and the purchase of a block of land for school purposes being [illegible] $[illegible] that the directors of this school district No 21 may contract a debt not exceeding [illegible] by borrowing money or otherwise for all [illegible] of the purposes set forth in section 1 of this resolution, and [illegible] as the law provides [illegible] for the payment of interest thereon, and also for the payment of principal when due.

Sec 3—That the said school directors may sell the block of land now owned by this district situate on J street for such sum as may be deemed [illegible] and proper, and to use the proceeds of said sale, together with any moneys remaining in their hands from the [illegible] fund in the construction of such school building, [illegible] the block to be purchased for school purposes in the northern part of the city.

Mr Perry, the clerk, then read the report of the committee appointed at the meeting in January, relating to the sale of the school block on J street and also what suitable block could be purchased for school purposes.

DISCUSSED AND ADOPTED

Mr John Hall desired to discuss the resolution before adopting it, and before purchasing a new block the property on J street should be sold.

Mr J A Nowell called for the clerk to state the amount of school money now on hand for school purposes, which was done, amounting to $8000, and he then moved to strike out that part of the resolution calling for a three mill tax for school purposes, stating that a five mill tax was sufficient for building and school purposes combined.

Rev D O Ghormley desired to know the amount of assessment in the district, so that the voters could ascertain how much tax would be required. The clerk read such parts of the annual report relating to the subject, also from the directors' report relating to the amount necessary for school purposes.

The question was then put as to striking out the three-mill tax, which was lost. The resolutions as read were then taken up.

Rev Ghormley moved that the resolution be taken up and voted upon by sections.

Mr John Hall seconded and warmly supported the motion. The motion as a whole was put and declared carried by the chairman. A division being called for, the result was decided by a rising vote, resulting in a unanimous adoption of the resolution.

Mr John Hall moved that the report of that committee be received and placed on file, which prevailed, and on motion the committee was discharged.

Mr Cyrus Buckman moved that the sense of the meeting be considered as adopting the report of the committee as to the purchase of the block owned by Mrs Campbell, situate on E street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets.

Mr Hall wished to know why the committee recommended the purchase of the block spoken of, which Mr Turnbull fully explained in an earnest speech. The motion to adopt was then carried without opposition.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

There was a most determined progressive spirit manifested, and East Portland may be congratulated upon the action of the meeting last night. Ample school facilities will be provided, and in a manner commensurate with the progress of the city. Stephens addition school will be completed and another building be erected in the northern part of the city. A new spirit enters into the city along the line of substantial progress.

The city marshal made an attempt to day to ascertain the names of the parties engaged in the row Sunday evening, but the woman referred to would not give the names nor any information about the affair.

J street, from Fifth to Seventh, is not open for travel in consequence of the Presbyterian church being moved, and also the roadway being replanked. A barge of lumber from La Camas came last Saturday for this improvement and it is now being put down.
